(b) Whenever and as often as the railway company, after the maturity of any such prior lien bonds, shall tender, or cause to be tendered, cash sufficient to purchase or acquire the same at par, the trustee forthwith shall receive such cash, and in consideration thereof shall certify and deliver to the railway company, or upon its order, an equivalent amount at par of the said bonds hereby secured and reserved.

(c) All cash so received by the trustee shall be by it held and applied to the purchase and acquisition at par of an equivalent amount at par of prior lien bonds, which shall have matured at or before the time of such purchase or acquisition.

All and every prior lien bond received by the trustee shall be by it stamped with the words "Not negotiable, but held in trust for the purposes declared in the first consolidated mortgage deed of the Railway Company, dated , ," and shall be by the trustee held as additional security for the payment of this mortgage debt.

The railway company shall provide and maintain books wherein it shall register as the property of the trustee, all such prior lien bonds received by the trustee; and except as herein expressly provided, no such prior lien bond shall be canceled, unless the holder thereof, at time of maturity, shall require cancellation as a condition of surrender.

No bond of the Railway Company, or of the Railway Company, shall be canceled unless the holder require cancellation, as aforesaid, unless or until all of the property mortgaged to secure the issue to which such bond belongs, shall have been lawfully conveyed in fee simple and free from incumbrances to the railway company, its successors or assigns; but, upon every such conveyance of the property mortgaged for any one of such three issues, the trustee may cancel and surrender to the railway company all of the bonds of such issue then held by it, and thereupon such property so mortgaged for such issue of prior lien bonds forthwith, ipso facto, and without further conveyance, shall become and be part of the premises hereby mortgaged, and shall be hereby conveyed, as though herein expressly and specifically conveyed, mortgaged, and pledged. Nevertheless, the railway company, its successors and assigns may, and shall, execute any and all transfers, assignments, or conveyances, from time to time desired by the trustee, in order expressly and specifically to subject to the lien of this indenture any property so acquired.

ARTICLE 4. Out of the remainder of the authorized issue hereunder, there shall be reserved, to be executed and to be certified by the trustee, not immediately, but only when and as required, bonds to the amount of million dollars, for the purchase and acquisition by the trustee, as hereinafter provided, of valid certificates of shares of stock issued by the following companies, viz.: [here describe them].

The trustee shall not certify any of these million dollars of bonds so reserved under this article except upon receiving equivalent amounts at par of the shares so to be purchased and acquired. For all such shares from time to time so received, the trustee, upon request of the railway company, shall certify and deliver to it $1,000 par value in such bonds for each $1,000 par value in such shares so received by it. All such shares when and as received by the trustee shall be transferred to its name and it shall hold the same as part of the trust estate hereunder, and subject to all the trusts, terms, and provisions of this indenture.

ARTICLE 5. Out of the remainder of the authorized issue hereunder there shall be reserved, to be executed and to be certified by the trustee, not immediately, but only when and as required, bonds to the amount of million dollars, for retiring or acquiring, as hereinafter provided, equipment bonds and equipment trust certificates, warrants, notes, or obligations which have matured, or shall mature, as hereinafter set forth, and to reimburse the railway company for such of them as already it has acquired or retired, or from time to time hereafter shall acquire and retire, viz.: [here describe them fully].

The trustee shall not certify any of the million dollars of bonds so reserved in this article for the purpose of redeeming such equipment bonds, and equipment trust certificates, warrants, notes, or obligations, except upon receiving satisfactory evidence that such equipment bonds, and equipment trust certificates, warrants, notes, or obligations to a corresponding amount have been redeemed, paid off, and canceled.

The certificate of the president or of one of the vice-presidents, and of the treasurer or auditor of the railway company, setting forth the payment of a specified amount of such equipment bonds, and equipment trust certificates, warrants, notes, or obligations, and that such payment has not been set forth in any certificate theretofore executed pursuant hereto, shall be sufficient evidence to the trustee of the payment thereof to the amount specified, but in any such case the trustee, if it deem proper, may require additional evidence of such payment satisfactory to it.

Upon receiving any such certificate of the president or of one of the vice-presidents and of the treasurer or auditor of the railway company, and, when required, other evidence satisfactorily showing the payment of any of such million dollars of equipment bonds, equipment trust certificates, warrants, notes, or obligations, the trustee, from time to time, from and out of the bonds so reserved therefor, as aforesaid, shall certify and deliver to the railway company, or upon its written order, $1,000, in such reserved bonds at par for each and every payment of $1,000 of such outstanding equipment bonds, equipment trust certificates, warrants, notes, or obligations, as specified in every such certificate of payment.

ARTICLE 6. Out of the remainder of the authorized issue hereunder, there shall be reserved, to be executed, and to be certified by the trustee, not immediately, but only when and as required, bonds to the amount of million dollars, which from time to time the trustee shall certify upon resolutions of the board of directors of the railway company, stating that such bonds, to the amount stated in such resolutions, or the proceeds thereof, are to be set aside separate and apart from all other assets and funds of the railway company, and are to be used only for the construction or acquisition of branch lines or extensions, or for the acquisition of stocks or bonds thereof; or for the purchase of rolling stock; or for construction and betterments; or for the purchase, subsequent to said date, of additional property upon, along, or appurtenant to lines of railway of the railway company now or hereafter made subject to the lien of this indenture, or to reimburse the railway company for outlays made for the purposes aforesaid, or some one or more of them.

From and out of the million dollars bonds reserved under this article the trustee shall certify and shall deliver to the railway company, or upon its order, bonds as follows, viz.:

Upon January 1, , or upon any day thereafter, but prior to December 31, , upon such resolution or resolutions of the board of directors of the railway company, million dollars of bonds at par, shall be so certified and delivered.

In each and every calendar year after December 31, , there shall be so certified and delivered such additional amount of such bonds, not exceeding million dollars par value in any calendar year, as from time to time shall be specified in similar resolutions, but in every instance, before certifying and delivering any such additional bonds, the trustee shall require the railway company to furnish, in addition to such resolution, the verified certificate or certificates of some person or persons cognizant of the facts, stating

(a) That all such bonds and the proceeds of all such bonds certified and delivered on or subsequent to the date of the last preceding resolution, or resolution and verified certificate, as the case may be, have been used for such purposes or for some one or more of them, or to reimburse the railway company as above provided;

(b) The amount of such bonds so certified and delivered, which, or the proceeds of which, on or subsequently to the date of the last preceding resolution, or resolution and verified certificate (as the case may be), shall have been actually used for any such purpose, or to reimburse the railway company, as above provided, and specifically indicating each and every such acquisition or construction of any railroad, track, structure, betterment, rolling stock, or other new property, and each and every acquisition of the bonds or stock of any company owning or controlling any railroad or other property (which stock shall be acquired only when a majority of the total capital stock of such company can and shall be obtained, unless such majority shall theretofore have been acquired and pledged hereunder), and also stating in detail the amount of bonds, or proceeds of bonds, and cash used or expended for each and every such purpose.

(c) That the price paid in bonds or their proceeds for such construction or acquisition was not in excess of the fair value of the work done or property acquired, and that the bonds included in such verified certificate were sold, disposed of, or otherwise accounted for, at not less than their fair market value at the time of such sale, disposition, or accounting.

In case any new property shall have been acquired by the use of any such bonds or their proceeds, every such verified certificate shall further state whether the property so acquired is known or believed to be subject to any lien or charge prior to this indenture (excepting always the hereinbefore recited mortgages, so far as any of them may attach thereto, and also excepting any undetermined liens or charges incidental to construction), and shall specify the amount of any such prior lien or charge known or believed to exist; and in case any bonds or any shares of the capital stock of any other company shall have been acquired by the use of any such bonds or their proceeds, every such verified certificate shall state whether the property of such other company, whose bonds or stock shall have been so acquired, is known or believed to be subject to any lien or charge prior to that securing such bonds of such company, and whether the company, whose capital stock shall have been so acquired, is known or believed to be indebted (except to the railway company) in any amount, and whether its property is known or believed to be subject to any lien or charge, and in each instance specifying the amount of any such lien or charge known or believed to exist. In every case of any such lien, charge, or indebtedness (except to the railway company or for undetermined liens or charges incidental to construction), and during the continuance of such lien, charge, or indebtedness, there shall be reserved therefor as provided in article two hereof a like amount at par of bonds hereby secured; but no creditor, or claimant, on account of any such lien, charge, or indebtedness, shall have any right, interest, or claim in or to any such reserved bonds, which shall be so reserved solely for the benefit of the railway company and for the protection of the holders of bonds issued hereunder.

Every such verified certificate shall be accompanied by the written statement of the president or of one of the vice-presidents, and of the auditor or treasurer, of the railway company, that they believe such certificate to be true, and that such bonds have been used and the expenditures therein certified have been made only for purposes properly chargeable to capital account of the railway company, and that no part thereof has been used for ordinary maintenance of the lines of railway or other property owned or in any way controlled by the railway company, or for replacements, or other purposes ordinarily treated by railroad companies as a part of their operating expenses. Together with such statements and verified certificates there shall be delivered to the trustee certificates for all shares of stock and all bonds so acquired, and such further instruments and conveyances as may be necessary to vest in the trustee all new property so acquired, and, so far as may be, any and all obligations taken up or acquired with or by the said bonds or their proceeds; together with written opinion of counsel for the railway company to the effect that such instruments and conveyances are sufficient for that purpose, or that no additional instrument or conveyance is necessary. The certificates for all shares of stock so acquired shall be duly transferred into the name of the trustee, and any bonds so acquired shall, if practicable, be transferred in like manner, or, if not susceptible of such transfer, they shall be plainly indorsed as the property of the trustee hereunder.

Such resolutions, statements, and verified certificates shall be deemed and taken as plenary authority to the said trustee for its certification of such bonds or of any one or more of them. But it is agreed that bonds in excess of an aggregate amount of million dollars shall not be issued or certified out of or from the million dollars reservation under this article, in any calendar year.

ARTICLE 7. The railway company covenants: That, retaining possession as hereinbefore provided, it will well and truly pay and discharge, or will acquire and pledge hereunder, at or before the several dates of maturity thereof, all of the million dollars of prior lien bonds mentioned in article three hereof; and that it will until such maturity thereof duly, punctually, and regularly pay the interest on all such bonds, not acquired and held hereunder by the trustee.

That, as and when, but no further than expressly required by the terms of any of the said [twenty] prior lien mortgages, it will from time to time cause to be issued thereunder bonds for delivery in exchange for other outstanding bonds for which reservation is made in article three hereof; but no issue shall be made thereunder that shall increase the aggregate prior lien indebtedness of million dollars, or that, except for such exchange, shall increase the indebtedness secured by any one or more of said [twenty] prior lien mortgages.

That it will duly and punctually pay all lawful claims and demands which, if unpaid, might take precedence over this indenture, and that each and every company, whose bonds or capital stock in whole or in part are, or shall be, pledged hereunder, at all times during the continuance of such pledge, will duly and punctually pay all lawful claims and demands which, if unpaid, might take precedence of any mortgage securing bonds of such company, or which might, in anywise, impair the value of the capital stock of such company if pledged hereunder; and that the railway company will enforce any and all of its claims and demands against any such company only in such manner as not to prejudice or affect the bonds secured by this indenture.

That, except as herein otherwise expressly provided, it will not sell any bond or share of stock, now or hereafter pledged by it under this indenture, nor pledge or agree to pledge or hypothecate the same, except subject to the prior lien hereof; that it will not by any voluntary act part with the ownership and title of such bonds or stock, or of any part of such bonds or stock, or its equity of redemption therein, or the voting power thereof; that it will, subject to the lien hereof, hold all and singular such stock of any company, of whose capital it may control the major part, in such manner that it shall retain in itself the rights and powers of a majority shareholder in the capital stock of every such company; and that as such holder of such stock it will not by affirmative vote, or by abstaining from voting, sanction or permit any increase of the capital stock of any such company or the creation of any mortgage or other lien upon the railroad or property of any such company, unless effective provision be made that all bonds secured by any such additional mortgage and all additional shares of such stock (which shares shall be fully paid and non-assessable), shall, at the time of their issue, be delivered and pledged to the trustee, to be by it held, subject to all the trusts of this indenture, with the same effect as if such bonds and shares had been delivered and pledged to it herein and at the time of the making hereof. But nothing herein contained shall prevent the extension at maturity of any bonds now or hereafter pledged to or held by the trustee under this indenture, and at the time of such pledge secured by any mortgage of any company, or prevent the issue of other bonds not exceeding the amounts so pledged, and secured by mortgage, in place thereof; it being distinctly understood that the time for the payment of the principal of any bonds so pledged hereunder may, at or before their maturity, be extended by the railway company (not then being in default hereunder), with the consent of the company which, at the time of such consent, shall own or control the property upon which such bonds so to be extended may be a lien, and also that other bonds secured by mortgages, not exceeding the amounts pledged hereunder, may be issued in substitution therefor, and that in every such case such new bonds shall forthwith ipso facto come under the lien and grant of this indenture, and shall forthwith be delivered to the trustee.

That whenever by the use of bonds hereby secured, or the proceeds thereof, it shall acquire any property subject to any outstanding lien, other than those hereinbefore mentioned, and other than undetermined liens incidental to construction, it shall, by appropriate instrument or instruments, reserve out of the million dollars of bonds set apart by article 6, an amount at par equivalent to all such liens (except as aforesaid) on such property hereafter acquired, and the bonds so reserved shall be executed, certified, delivered, and used only for the retirement or acquisition of such liens, in amounts equivalent at least to the par of the bonds delivered therefor, and all the liens so retired or acquired shall be canceled or held by the trustee as, in its judgment, shall best protect the holders of the bonds hereby secured. This provision is, however, in nowise to modify the provisions of article 6, as to the amount of bonds which may be issued in the year 189 , and in the several subsequent calendar years, it being understood that such amount of bonds annually issuable, under said article 6, from the residue of said million dollars of bonds, is not reduced by this provision.

That it shall and will, from time to time, pay and discharge all taxes, assessments, and governmental charges lawfully imposed upon the lines of railroad and other premises hereby mortgaged, or upon any part thereof, or upon the income and profits thereof, the lien of which might or could be held to be prior to the lien hereof, so that the priority of this indenture shall be fully preserved; and if any company whose stock or bonds, in whole or in part, are or shall be pledged hereunder, shall, at any time during the continuance of any such pledge, fail to pay all such taxes, assessments, and charges lawfully imposed upon the property of such company, or upon the income and profits thereof, it will itself pay and discharge the same.

[Here insert article 2, from Form No. 1320.]

ARTICLE . In case default shall be made by the railway company in the payment of any interest on any bond at any time issued and secured by this indenture, or by any mortgage recited in article 6 hereof, and such default shall continue for a period of six months; or in case default shall be made by the railway company in the due and punctual payment of the principal of any bond secured hereby or by any mortgage recited in article 3 hereof, when and as the same shall mature, or in the like payment of any equipment bond, or equipment trust certificate, warrant, note, or obligation recited in article 5 hereof; or in case default shall be made by the railway company in the payment of any tax, assessment, or other governmental charge lawfully imposed or levied upon any part of such railways, property, and premises, or the income and profits thereof, and such default shall continue for a period of six months after written notice thereof from the trustee or from any holder of bonds hereby secured; [Here take in article 3, from Form No. 1320, at , page 1180.]

[Here take in articles 4 to 25, from Form No. 1320.]

ARTICLE . Until default be made as aforesaid, and some action in respect thereof shall have been taken by the trustee, or by bondholders, as herein authorized, the railway company shall have the right to vote upon all shares of stock pledged hereunder, for all purposes not inconsistent with the provisions or purposes of this indenture and with the same force and effect as though such pledge had not been made. From time to time the trustee shall give to the railway company, or its nominee, suitable proxies for such purposes.

ARTICLE . The trustee may and shall do whatever may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining or preserving the corporate existence of any and all companies whose shares are pledged hereunder, and for such purposes from time to time it may sell or assign, transfer and deliver so many shares of the stocks of the several companies as may be necessary to qualify persons to act as directors of said companies.

ARTICLE . If, at any time, the obligors in any of the bonds at any time pledged hereunder shall fail to make payment of either the principal or interest thereof, according to the tenor of such bonds, the trustee, upon the written request of the railway company, and not otherwise, shall cause proper and apt proceedings to be instituted and prosecuted in some court of competent jurisdiction to foreclose the mortgage, or mortgages, by which such bonds shall be secured, and if the property covered by such mortgage, or mortgages, shall be sold under foreclosure, it shall cause the same to be purchased for and in the name of the railway company, if the amount bid at such sale shall not exceed the full amount due on such bonds, and the cost and expenses of such suit and sale. If such property shall sell for a larger sum, the trustee shall receive the proceeds of such sale, and shall apply the same as herein provided. When any railroad or railroad property shall be purchased by the trustee, for and in the name of the railway company, as above provided, the lien of this indenture immediately and ipso facto shall attach to, and bind, the property so purchased.

When the trustee shall receive moneys arising from the foreclosure of any mortgage executed to secure the payment of bonds pledged hereunder, it shall apply such moneys in the manner provided in article 4 hereof, for the application of money arising from the release of real property mortgaged hereunder.

ARTICLE . No assignment or pledge hereunder of any shares of stock of any company or companies now or hereafter deposited hereunder, shall prevent the consolidation or merger of any one or more of said companies with, or its sale to, the railway company, but such consolidation, merger, or sale may be made under any laws to which such companies may then be subject, anything in this indenture contained to the contrary notwithstanding: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that such consolidation, merger, or sale shall be made only upon such terms as shall be approved by the trustee, or by the holders of a majority in interest of the bonds secured by this indenture. In the event of the consolidation or merger of any one or more of the said companies with, or its sale to, the railway company, this indenture immediately shall become and be a lien upon the property of the company so consolidated or merged with, or sold to, the railway company, with the same force and effect as if expressly conveyed by this indenture, and the holders of the bonds hereby secured shall always have as full and complete a lien upon such property as that herein created by the pledge of the stock and bonds of such constituent companies to the trustee hereunder.

Neither shall the assignment or pledge hereunder of any capital stock of any company or companies prevent the consolidation or merger of any such companies with each other; but such consolidation or merger may be made under any laws to which such companies may then be subject, anything in this indenture contained to the contrary notwithstanding: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that such consolidation or merger shall be made only upon such terms as shall be approved by the trustee or by the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds secured by this indenture; and that the portion of the capital stock of any such consolidated or merging company (but never less than a majority thereof), issued for and in lieu of any stock previously pledged hereunder, shall always bear to the total capital stock a proportionate relation at least as high as that borne by such previously pledged stock to the total capital stock of such constituent companies. Such portion of such stock of such consolidated or merging company shall be assigned to and deposited with the trustee, and shall become and be subject to the lien of this indenture with the same force and effect as if expressly pledged by this indenture; and the holders of the bonds hereby secured shall always have a lien upon such portion of such stock of such consolidated or merging company as full and complete as upon the stock and bonds of such constituent companies by reason of the pledge thereof hereunder.

The trustee may do any and all things proper to carry into effect the purposes of this article.

ARTICLE . Any sale pursuant to any provision hereof, because of any default of the railway company, whether made under the power of sale hereby granted and conferred, or under or by virtue of judicial proceedings, or some judgment or decree of foreclosure and sale made by any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be made subject to the prior right or rights of the mortgage bonds hereinbefore mentioned as entitled to priority, and subject to the lien of any mortgage or mortgages prior to this indenture upon any property hereby conveyed to the extent of such lien or liens respectively.

[Here take in articles 26 to 31, and witness clause, etc., from Form No. 1320.]

WHEREAS, at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the railroad company, held at the principal office of the railroad company in the city of _____, in the state of _____, on the _____ day of _____, _____, it was unanimously

“Resolved, That the board of directors has and it is hereby given the consent of the stockholders of this company and hereby is authorized to create an issue of bonds of this company to an amount not to exceed $5,000,000, for the purpose of acquiring from time to time additional railroad equipment and rolling stock for the use of the company, and of retiring the existing car trust obligations and securities on railroad equipment and rolling stock used by the company, such bonds to be secured by deed of trust or mortgage upon such additional railroad equipment and rolling stock, and upon such car trust obligations and securities in such manner and on such terms as to the board may seem best, and in order that the board may carry this resolution into effect, to use for that purpose any of the equipment trust bonds or securities owned by the company;” and,

WHEREAS, at a meeting of the directors of the railroad company, held on the _____ day of _____, _____, it was unanimously resolved:

“WHEREAS, in order to acquire certain railroad equipment and rolling stock necessary for the operation of this company, and to secure the payment of the purchase money therefor, and of the money necessary to retire or acquire the outstanding car trust obligations and securities on certain railroad equipment and rolling stock used by the company, it is necessary for the company to issue its bonds to the extent of five million dollars to be secured upon the said railroad equipment and rolling stock and upon the car trust obligations and securities purchased or acquired by the said bonds or their proceeds:

"Resolved, That this company make and issue its bonds for the aggregate sum of five million dollars, which bonds shall be of the denomination of one thousand dollars each, and shall be numbered consecutively from one to five thousand, both inclusive, and shall be substantially in the following form, to wit:

This bond shall not become valid until the certificate indorsed hereon shall have been signed by or on behalf of the trustee under said deed of trust or mortgage.

which shall be at least equal to the remainder of the "unpaid principal of car trusts," shown in Schedules C¹ and C², after deducting therefrom the proper portion of "unpaid principal of car trusts," represented by car trust certificates, obligations, or securities of any such corporations so purchased or acquired by the trustee and included in the lease warrants securing the same; the car trust certificates, obligations, or securities of such corporations so acquired, or if paid off, their proceeds, in the hands of the trustee, shall be used by the trustee under the certificate or voucher of the president of the railroad company, and in such manner as may be approved by the trustee, and in accordance with Schedules C¹ and C², hereto annexed, in purchasing or acquiring any lease warrants or other car trust certificates, obligations, or securities then outstanding under said car trust leases or contracts.

IT IS DISTINCTLY UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED, HOWEVER: That so long as any of the lease warrants or car trust certificates, obligations, or securities remain unacquired by the trustee, the trustee shall retain of the said $1,000,000 bonds (estimating the cash value of bonds so retained at 90 per cent. of their par value) and of the unused cash proceeds of such of them as may have been sold for cash, taken together, an amount which shall be at least equal to the remainder of the "unpaid principal of car trusts," in the then outstanding lease warrants, or the amount necessary, under Schedules C¹ and C² (after deducting therefrom the proper portion of "unpaid principal of car trusts," represented by car trust certificates, obligations, or securities of any corporations purchased or acquired by the trustee), to be applied out of the said bonds or their proceeds for the purchase or acquirement of the lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities at such time remaining unacquired.

2. When and as such lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities are purchased and acquired as aforesaid by the trustee for the purposes hereof, the same shall be marked or stamped as follows: "This has been purchased and acquired by the Trust Company of New York, trustee, in accordance with and for the purposes of the deed of trust or mortgage from the B. & C. Railroad Company to the Trust Company of New York, trustee, dated , , and shall be held, transferred, or canceled only in accordance therewith."

3. All of said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities that may be purchased or acquired by the trustee as hereinbefore provided, shall be deposited with the trustee, and be held by the trustee in its name and ownership for the full amounts thereof, with all the powers, obligations, estate and interest, liens, rights, and remedies incident thereto undisturbed, as additional security for the bonds intended to be hereby secured, and shall be by the trustee retained, for all the purposes of, and subject to, all the terms and conditions of this deed of trust or mortgage, except as herein otherwise provided, until all the bonds issued hereunder are fully paid and discharged.

4. When and as lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities are purchased or acquired by the trustee under the operation and for the purposes hereof, and at any time or times during the existence of the trust hereby created, the time for the payment of the obligation of the railroad company thereon shall thereby without any further act or deed be extended until the 1st day of , or the earlier maturity of the principal amount of all the bonds secured hereby by reason of the default of the railroad company under any of the provisions hereof, but the trustee shall and will, upon the proper voucher or certificate of the president of the railroad company, and in such manner as shall be approved by the trustee or its counsel learned in the law, by such further act or deed that may be deemed advisable or necessary, extend or arrange for the extension of the time for payment of the obligations of the railroad company thereon until the 1st day of , 19 , or the earlier maturity of the principal amount of all the bonds secured hereby by reason of the default of the railroad company under any of the provisions hereof.

5. All the costs, charges, and legal or other expenses necessary or incident to the acquiring or purchase by the trustee of any of the herein mentioned lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities, or the instruments under which they or any of them shall have been issued, shall be paid by the railroad company upon demand, and in case of failure of the railroad company to pay upon such demand any and all sums thus due, then such amounts shall, at the option of the said trustee, be added to the principal amount due under this mortgage or deed of trust, and the trustee shall be entitled to all the rights, liens, and remedies thereupon that are granted to it hereunder, and which are incident to the amounts due and payable upon the bonds secured hereby.

6. If after all of said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, and securities now outstanding shall have been so acquired by the trustee, any surplus of the said $1,000,000 of bonds shall remain unissued, or any surplus of the proceeds of any of the said bonds which have been sold shall remain in the hands of the trustee, such surplus shall be used for the purchase of additional railroad equipment and rolling stock in the same manner and for the same purposes as are set forth in the second article hereof in relation to the $4,000,000 of bonds, or the proceeds thereof, as therein mentioned, or if at any time while any of said $1,000,000 of bonds remain in the hands of the trustee a surplus should exist of such bonds or their proceeds in excess of the amount required to provide for "unpaid principal of car trust," such surplus may at the option of the railroad company be used for the purchasing and furnishing additional railroad equipment and rolling stock in the same manner and for the same purposes as herein provided in relation to said $4,000,000 of bonds or proceeds thereof.

7. It is distinctly understood and agreed, however, that in case of default of the railroad company to pay the principal or interest of the bonds secured hereby, or any of the sinking fund or other payments provided for herein, or in case proceedings of any kind shall be commenced against the railroad company for the appointment of a receiver, or for the foreclosure of any deed of trust or mortgage, or in case the railroad company shall make default in any of the payments required to be made under any of its car trust leases, contracts, or obligations, or in case of the institution of any proceedings either at law or in equity whereby the control or ownership of its railroad equipment and rolling stock, railroad property, or franchise, or any part thereof, may be affected or disturbed, then and in either of such events the trustee shall at its option be relieved from all obligation to take up, acquire, or purchase any of the said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities.

8. Until all the payments provided for in this deed of trust or mortgage and in the bonds intended to be secured hereby shall have been fully and completely made by the railroad company, and all the covenants and agreements on its part hereunder and under the said car trust leases and contracts or obligations hereinbefore referred to shall have been kept and performed, the title to the railroad equipment and rolling stock therein referred to shall not pass to or vest in the railroad company, and no right whatever thereto or to any part thereof shall pass to the railroad company except that of using the same, as therein and herein provided, and this indenture and the terms and requirements thereof shall in no manner affect or prejudice the right, title, or interest of the lessors in such contracts, or of persons or corporations claiming under them, in and to the said railroad equipment and rolling stock, or relieve the railroad company of or from any liability, or of or from the performance of any of the covenants or agreements in or under the said car trust leases and contracts or obligations.

9. In case the railroad company shall make default in the payment of the principal or interest of the bonds secured hereby or any of the sinking fund or other payments provided for herein, or in case proceedings of any kind shall be commenced against the railroad company for the appointment of a receiver, or for the foreclosure of any deed of trust or mortgage, or in case the said railroad company shall make default in the payment of any of the amounts required to be made under car trust leases, contracts, or obligations, or in case of the institution of any proceedings either at law or in equity whereby the control or ownership of its railroad equipment and rolling stock, railroad property, or franchises, or any part thereof, may be affected or disturbed, and said trustee shall decline to continue to further take up, acquire, or purchase the said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities, as in that case it has the right to do under the preceding seventh paragraph of this article, then and in either and every such event the said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities then already taken up, acquired, or purchased, and deposited with the trustee may be sold at public sale in such amounts, on such notice, and at such times as the trustee may determine, and the proceeds thereof applied to the payment of the bonds intended to be secured hereby, as hereinafter provided.

10. In case of default of the railroad company to pay the principal or interest of the bonds secured hereby, or any of the sinking fund or other payments provided for herein, or in case proceedings of any kind shall be commenced against the railroad company for the appointment of a receiver, or for the foreclosure of any deed of trust or mortgage, or in case the railroad company shall make default in any of the payments required to be made under any of its car trust leases, contracts, or obligations, or in case of the institution of any proceedings, either at law or in equity, whereby the control or ownership of its railroad equipment and rolling stock, railroad property, or franchises, or any part thereof, may be affected or disturbed, then and in either and every such event the trustee may, at its option, do each and everything that the former holders of such lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities would have had a right to do in case there had been a default thereunder, and by lien or otherwise enforce or require the enforcement of any or all of the said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities taken up, acquired, or purchased by it in accordance with the terms of the contract or contracts under which the same were issued or given.

Fourth. Until the payment of all the bonds secured hereby, the railroad company shall and will pay unto and deposit with the trustee a sum of money equal to 3 per centum per annum upon all the bonds countersigned and delivered by the trustee hereunder, as and for a sinking fund to be applied by the trustee in a manner to be approved by the railroad company, to the purchase of bonds secured hereby at the lowest price obtainable not exceeding par and accrued interest; such sinking fund payments or deposits to be made semi-annually, on the 1st day of and in each year (the first to be made on the 1st day of ,), and each such semi-annual payment to be equal to $1\frac{1}{2}$ per centum upon the total amount of bonds at par countersigned and delivered to that date by the trustee. If during the period ending the 1st day of , , none of the bonds secured hereby can be purchased at a price not exceeding par and accrued interest, the money in the sinking fund shall be applied by the trustee under the direction of the railroad company to the purchase of or investment in any of the bonds secured by deeds of trust or mortgages existing at the date hereof on property of the railroad company. When and as divisional mortgage bonds on the property of the railroad company are acquired by the trustee as last hereinbefore provided, and the maturity thereof is at a date prior to , , then the trustee shall, if requested so to do by the railroad company, extend the payment of the principal amounts thereof until said 1st day of , , and at a rate of interest not exceeding five per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, and not less than the lowest rate paid on other divisional bonds of the same class of the railroad company that may have been extended to the same date. All of the interest received by the trustee upon any of the bonds secured by existing deeds of trust or mortgages on property of the railroad company so to be purchased or acquired by the trustee shall be held by it as a part of the sinking fund under this mortgage or deed of trust, and together with any other income, interest, or proceeds of said sinking fund shall be applied as herein stated. On and after the 1st day of , , if the trustee shall at that date have in the sinking fund any of the mortgage bonds on property of the railroad company, the trustee shall within four months thereafter, in a manner to be approved by the railroad company, dispose of the same and apply the proceeds with any other accumulations in the sinking fund to the purchase of bonds secured hereby at the lowest price obtainable, not exceeding par and accrued interest: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that should the trustee hold in the sinking fund on and after the 1st day of , , any of the divisional mortgage bonds on property of the company, the trustee shall, if requested so to do by the railroad company, hold the same for a period not beyond the 1st day of , , before applying them to compulsory drawings of the bonds issued hereunder as herein provided. If none of the bonds issued hereunder are, on or after the 1st day of , , obtainable at or below par and accrued interest, then the trustee shall apply the amount then in such sinking fund to the compulsory drawing by lot of bonds secured hereby and then outstanding, and shall proceed to draw by lot such bonds as are to be so paid by the sinking fund, at such time and place as it shall designate for that purpose, first giving notice to the railroad company of the drawing and the time and place thereof, and after such drawing shall take place, the trustee shall give notice of the bonds which have been so drawn and of the time and place for the presentation and payment thereof, which

The drawing of bonds for redemption by the sinking fund herein shall take place semi-annually after the 1st day of _____, _____, and when practicable at such time that the date for the presentation and payment of the bonds so drawn shall be on an interest payment date, either the 1st day of _____ or _____, and the drawing shall be conducted in the manner following, viz.: The trustee shall cause to be prepared cards of equal size, containing the numbers of all outstanding bonds, one number on each card, and a drawing by lot shall then be made in presence of a notary public until the requisite amount of bonds shall have been drawn; the result of which drawing shall be certified under his seal by said notary, describing by numbers the bonds so drawn, and a copy of such certificate of drawing shall thereupon, be delivered to said trustee, and a copy to the president or treasurer of the railroad company.

All bonds secured hereby and purchased or redeemed by operation of the sinking fund, shall without unreasonable delay be canceled by the trustee, and the debt of the railroad company shall to that extent be extinguished.

Fifth. Upon call by the railroad company, on the 1st day of _____, _____, or from time to time, and at any time thereafter, any or all of the bonds hereby secured are liable to be redeemed at par with accrued interest, notice thereof being given by advertisement published once a week for ninety days in a newspaper published in each of the cities of New York and _____, and in such other newspapers elsewhere as the trustee may direct, stating the numbers of the bonds so called for redemption, and the time and place for the presentation and surrender thereof for redemption, which time shall not be less than ninety days from date of beginning of such publication, and after the date so fixed for presentation and surrender all interest shall cease on the bonds so called, and the bonds so redeemed shall be forthwith canceled by the trustee, and the debt of the railroad company shall to that extent be extinguished.

The drawing of the bonds so to be redeemed shall be conducted by the trustee, and when practicable shall take place at such time that the date for the presentation and payment of the bonds so drawn shall be on an interest payment date, either on the 1st of _____ or _____, and the bonds so to be redeemed shall be ascertained by a drawing in the manner following, viz.: The trustee shall cause to be prepared cards of equal size, containing the numbers of all outstanding bonds, one number on each card, and a drawing by lot shall then be made in presence of a notary public until the requisite amount of bonds shall have been drawn; the result of which drawing shall be certified under his seal by said notary, describing by numbers the bonds so drawn, and a copy of such certificate of drawing shall thereupon be delivered to said trustee and a copy to the president or treasurer of the railroad company.

Sixth. Until default shall be made by the railroad company in the payment of the principal or interest of the bonds secured hereby, or any of them, or of the said semi-annual sinking fund payments or other payments provided for herein, and on the days and times provided in said bonds or herein respectively, without further delay, and without deduction from either principal or interest for any tax or taxes which the railroad company may be required to pay or retain therefrom, by any present or future laws of the United States, or any of the states thereof, or of any local division thereof, the railroad company having agreed and hereby agreeing to pay the same, or until proceedings of any kind shall be commenced against the railroad company for the appointment of a receiver or for the foreclosure of any deed of trust or mortgage, or until the railroad company shall make default in any of the payments required to be made under any of its car trust leases, contracts, or obligations, or until the institution of any proceedings either at law or in equity whereby the control or ownership of its railroad equipment or rolling stock, railroad property and franchises, or any part thereof, may be affected or disturbed, or until default shall be made by the railroad company in respect to some act or thing, covenant, or agreement in any of said bonds or herein required to be done, kept, and performed, the railroad company shall be permitted to remain in possession, use, and enjoyment of the railroad equipment and rolling stock herein mentioned and described, and so furnished or to be furnished to it by the trustee, as herein provided.

Seventh. The railroad company shall and will, at its own proper cost and expense, keep and maintain the said railroad equipment and rolling stock so furnished and to be furnished to it by the trustee, as herein provided, in good order and repair, and shall and will at once replace at its own cost any of the same that may be destroyed from any cause whatever, during the continuance of this trust, by or with other like railroad equipment and rolling stock of equal value and material, character, and construction, or by or with such other rolling stock and equipment of different character, but of equal value, as may be approved of in writing by the trustee, and in the latter event the railroad company shall file with the trustee a statement in detail of the former railroad equipment and rolling stock, and of the railroad equipment and rolling stock so provided in replacement thereof; and the railroad company shall and will make all repairs, maintenance, and replacements to the satisfaction of any competent inspector who may from time to time be selected by the trustee to examine the same, and shall and will mark, or cause to be marked, on each side of each and every article of rolling stock and equipment acquired by the trustee for the purposes hereof, the words, "owned by the Trust Company of New York, trustee, B. & C. Railroad, equipment mortgage," and the proper number; and will not allow the name or designation of any other company as owner to be placed on any such railroad equipment and rolling stock. In the event of any such marks being destroyed, the railroad company will immediately restore the same, and will do such other acts as the trustee shall require for the full and complete protection of its rights hereunder.

And the railroad company shall and will pay, satisfy, and discharge all assessments, taxes, and charges, whether state, municipal, or otherwise, that shall or may be lawfully assessed, charged, or imposed upon this mortgage, or upon the payments and obligations intended to be secured hereby, and upon the railroad equipment or rolling stock so furnished or to be furnished to it by the trustee, as herein provided.

The railroad company shall and will insure the said railroad equipment and rolling stock so furnished or to be furnished to it by the trustee, as herein provided, for the benefit of the trustee, for such amounts as other similar railroad equipment and rolling stock are insured by the railroad company, and shall keep the said railroad equipment and rolling stock so insured until the bonds hereby secured are fully paid, and shall deposit the policies of insurance or certificates thereof with the trustee; in default whereof the trustee may at its option cause insurance to be effected in such companies and in such manner as it may from time to time think best, and the railroad company shall and will on demand pay the premiums for such insurance, and such other expenses as may be incident thereto, and the trustee may also at its option require the railroad company to replace in solvent insurance companies any insurance placed by the railroad company in insurance companies whose standing may then or thereafter be impaired.

The railroad company shall and will through its general manager, or other proper officer or agent, furnished to the said trustee, half-yearly, during the months of and , in each year, during the continuance of this trust, or oftener, if required by the said trustee, a statement of the condition, location, and use of said railroad equipment and rolling stock so furnished, or to be furnished to it by the trustee, as herein provided, the number and description of all that may have been destroyed and substituted during the year preceding, and also the number then awaiting or undergoing repairs in the shops of the railroad company, or elsewhere; and the said trustee shall have the right to inspect the said equipment and rolling stock once in every year, or oftener, during the continuance of this trust, by any person to be appointed by the said trustee, and such person or agent shall be furnished with the necessary authority to travel without charge over the railroads wherever the same may be for the purpose of making such inspection.

Eighth. If the railroad company shall at any time hereafter make default, or refuse, neglect, or omit for any period exceeding ninety days, to pay said bonds as they mature, or to pay the interest on said bonds intended to be hereby secured, or any of them, or shall fail to pay the semi-annual sinking fund payments, or other payments provided for herein, or shall refuse or fail to keep or perform any of the covenants or stipulations contained herein, or in the said bonds secured or intended to be secured hereby, or on its part to be kept or performed, or in case proceedings of any kind shall be commenced against the railroad company for the appointment of a receiver, or for the foreclosure of any deed of trust or mortgage, or in case the railroad company shall make default in any of the payments required to be made under any of its car trust leases, contracts, or obligations, or in case of the institution of any proceedings either at law or in equity whereby the control or ownership of its railroad equipment or rolling stock, railroad property, or franchises, or any part thereof, may be affected or disturbed, then and in either of such events the trustee shall and will, upon written request of the holders of [one-fourth] in amount of the bonds secured hereby and then outstanding, and upon adequate security and indemnity against all costs, expenses, and liabilities to be by it incurred, or without such request or security or indemnity, it shall be lawful for the trustee, at its own discretion, forthwith to demand, and with such force as may be necessary, enter upon the premises and railroad of the railroad company, or of any other person or corporation where the said railroad equipment and rolling stock so furnished or to be furnished to the railroad company, as herein provided, or any of it, may be, and take immediate and maintain exclusive possession of all and singular the said railroad equipment and rolling stock so furnished or to be furnished to the railroad company by the trustee, as herein provided, and any which may be substituted therefor, and as the attorney in fact or agent of the railroad company, by its agents and substitutes duly constituted, have, hold, use, manage, operate, lease, and enjoy the same to as full an extent as the railroad company might lawfully do, making from time to time all proper repairs, and paying insurance, taxes, and other necessary expenses connected therewith, and shall take and receive the income, rentals, and profits thereof, and the trustee shall likewise proceed, in its own discretion, with or without the order or decree of any court of equity or other competent court having jurisdiction in the premises, and as by the trustee may be determined or by said court may be ordered or decreed, to sell and dispose of to the highest and best bidder or bidders at public auction, in such lots or amounts, on such notice, and at such times and at such places as the trustee or court may authorize, and to adjourn said sale or sales from time to time, in its discretion, and if so adjourning to make such sale or sales at the times and places to which the same may be so adjourned, any and all of said railroad equipment and rolling stock, and also in like manner and on like terms and conditions to sell and dispose of any and all of the lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities purchased or acquired by the trustee as hereinbefore provided for the purposes hereof, and thereupon to transfer, deliver, and convey the same to the purchaser or purchasers thereof, by good and sufficient deed or deeds for the same, free from any right or claim of equity of redemption of the railroad company, its successors or assigns, and freed from all the trusts hereby created, without liability to see to the application of the purchase money, and without obligation to inquire into the necessity, expediency, or authority of any such sale (which sale shall be a perpetual bar, both in law and equity, against the railroad company, and all persons claiming under it), and after deducting from the net proceeds realized by means of such use and occupation, and from such sale, or from either, all proper costs, charges, and disbursements incurred in and about the premises, including attorney and counsel fees, and all other expenses, advances, or liabilities, which may have been made by it for repairs, insurance, taxes, or assessments, as well as reasonable compensation for its own services, the trustee shall apply the balance of such net proceeds to or towards the payment or discharge, with pro rata equality, of the principal and interest at such time owing and unpaid of and upon the said bonds hereby secured, whether the same be then due or to become due, and without preference of principal over interest, or of interest over principal, rendering or paying any surplus which may then remain after the full satisfaction of the principal of the said bonds, and every of them, and the interest thereon, to the railroad company, its successors or assigns; or the trustee shall and will, upon the written request of holders of [one-fourth] in amount of said bonds then outstanding, and upon like security and indemnity, or without such request or security or indemnity, in its own discretion, the trustee may, in its own name or otherwise, proceed to protect and enforce the rights of the bondholders secured hereby by a suit or suits in equity or at law, whether for the specific performance of the stipulated covenants and agreements, or any of them, contained herein or in any of the lease warrants, car trust certificates, securities or obligations so purchased or acquired, or to be purchased or acquired by the trustee hereunder as herein provided on the part of the railroad company to be kept and performed, whether in aid of the execution of powers herein granted, whether by the enforcement of any lien or right of lien, or otherwise, as the trustee, being advised by counsel learned in the law, shall deem most effectual to protect and enforce such rights; it being understood, and it is hereby expressly declared, that the rights of entry and sale hereinbefore granted are intended as cumulative remedies additional to all other rights, liens, or remedies allowed by law, and that the same shall not be deemed in any manner whatever to deprive the trustee or the beneficiaries under this trust of any legal or equitable remedy by judicial proceedings consistent with the provisions of these presents, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, or to waive or affect the right of the trustee to any lien or right of lien which otherwise may be vested in it or the bondholders secured hereby: PROVIDED ALWAYS, and it is hereby expressly declared and agreed, that no holder or holders of a bond or of any bonds secured hereby, shall have the right to institute any suit, action, or proceeding in equity or at law for the foreclosure of this indenture, or the execution of any of the trusts thereof, or for the appointment of a receiver, or for any other remedy hereunder, without first giving notice in writing to the trustee of default having occurred or continued as aforesaid, nor unless [one-fourth] in amount of the holders of bonds hereby secured and then outstanding have made request in writing to the trustee as above provided, and have afforded it a reasonable opportunity to proceed to exercise the powers hereinbefore granted, or to institute such action, suit, or proceeding, in its own name, and have also offered to it adequate security and indemnity against the costs, expenses, and liabilities to be incurred therein or thereby; and such notification, request, and offer of indemnity are hereby declared to be, at the option of the trustee, conditions precedent for the execution of the powers and trusts of this indenture, and to any action, or cause of action, for the foreclosure, or the appointment of a receiver, or for any other remedy hereunder: AND PROVIDED ALSO, that neither the trustee, nor the holder or holders of the bonds intended to be hereby secured, or any of them, shall sell the premises hereby mortgaged, or intended so to be, or any part thereof, or institute any suit, action, or procedure in law or equity, for the foreclosure hereof, or for the appointment of a receiver, or enforce any right, lien, or remedy hereby granted or reserved, otherwise than in the manner herein provided or allowed to the trustee.

Ninth. At any sale of the said railroad equipment and rolling stock and lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, and securities, and of either or any of them, or any part thereof, whether made by virtue of any power herein granted, or by judicial authority, the trustee may bid for and purchase the same or any of them, or cause the same or any of them to be bid for and purchased for and on behalf of all the holders of the bonds hereby secured and then outstanding, in the proportion of the respective interests of such bondholders, at a reasonable price, if but a portion thereof be sold, or if the whole of said mortgaged property should be sold, then at a price not exceeding the total amount of such bonds outstanding, with the interest accrued thereon and the expenses of such sale. In case of a sale of the herein mortgaged property, or any part thereof, either by the trustee or in the course of judicial proceedings as hereinbefore provided, the purchaser or purchasers at such sale, in making payment of the purchase money and making settlement thereof, after making a cash payment sufficient to cover the costs and expenses of the sale, and all other charges which must be provided for in actual cash, shall have the right to deliver and pay and turn in and use towards the payment of the purchase money, any of the bonds or coupons secured hereby and held by him or them, to or towards which the net proceeds of such sale shall be legally applicable, counting such bonds or coupons for that purpose at the sum which shall be payable out of the net proceeds of such sale to the holder or holders of such bonds or coupons as his or their just share of such net proceeds, after allowing for the proportion of payment that may be required in cash for the costs and expenses of the sale; and if such share of such net proceeds shall be less than the amount then due upon such bonds or coupons, to make settlement by receipting upon all such bonds or coupons the amount to be credited thereupon as aforesaid. And in the event of a purchase of said railroad equipment or rolling stock, lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities, as aforesaid, by said trustee, the right and title thereto shall vest in said trustee, in trust for the purchasers, and each holder of bonds or coupons joining in said purchase and contributing his proportion of the cash expenses thereof, shall have an interest in the property so purchased, in the proportion that his bonds and coupons bear to the entire issue of bonds and coupons outstanding.

Tenth. In the event of the trustee making such entry and taking possession of the railroad equipment and rolling stock hereinbefore mentioned, or in event of any sale thereof, or of the lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities, or any of them, by reason of any default as herein mentioned on the part of the railroad company, either by the trustee or by judicial proceedings, then, and in either such case, the whole principal sum of each and all of the said bonds then outstanding and intended to be hereby secured, and the full amount of all lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, and securities purchased or acquired by the trustee under the provisions hereof, shall forthwith become due and payable, anything in said bonds or in said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, and securities or herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding, and notwithstanding the time limited in said bonds or the said lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, and securities or herein may not then have expired, and in no other case and for no other purpose shall the principal sum of any of said bonds hereby secured become due and payable before the date fixed in such bonds or herein for the payment thereof, except when redeemed for the purposes of the sinking fund or at the call of the railroad company, or except when the principal sum thereof has been declared to have become due and payable by the trustee, or by the holder or holders of a [majority] in amount of the bonds issued hereunder then outstanding, after default on the part of the railroad company under the foregoing provisions hereof, in which event the holders of a [majority] in amount of the bonds then outstanding may instruct the trustee to declare the principal sum to be due, or waive, or instruct the trustee to waive, the right so to declare on such terms and conditions as such [majority] may deem proper, and may annul or reverse a previous declaration made by the trustee in that behalf: PROVIDED ALWAYS, and it is hereby declared, that no such action of the trustee or bondholders shall extend or be taken to affect any subsequent default or impair the rights resulting therefrom.

It is also understood and agreed that in case of any default hereunder on the part of the railroad company, as herein provided, that all the earnings of the said railroad equipment and rolling stock so furnished or to be furnished to the railroad company by the trustee, as herein provided, shall then and thereafter be and become payable to the trustee, and be applied by it as if received under the provisions of the eighth article hereof, and the railroad company agrees forthwith upon such default, and hereby authorizes and empowers the trustee to notify the Railroad Clearing House Association, or the railroad companies that at the time may be owing for the service or use of the said railroad equipment and rolling stock, to pay over such earnings to the said trustee. Such notice, however, shall not be necessary in order to enable the trustee to collect and receive such earnings in case of default.

Eleventh. The railroad company does hereby covenant with the trustee and its successors, for and on behalf of the bondholders entitled to the benefit of the security hereby provided or intended so to be, that the railroad company shall and will at any time, and at all times hereafter, upon reasonable request, make, do, execute, and deliver all such other and further reasonable assurances, acts, deeds, and things as in the opinion of competent counsel may be necessary or proper to effectuate the lien and security hereby intended to be created for the benefit of all such bondholders, and especially to hold and render subject to the lien of this mortgage any and all of the rolling stock or equipment which may have been or shall be furnished to it by the trustee, as provided herein, or which may have been provided or furnished in substitution for like railroad equipment or rolling stock injured or destroyed, and will not transfer possession of said railroad equipment and rolling stock to any other person or persons or corporations, except temporarily, according to the usual course of traffic, without the written consent of the trustee; and also the railroad company doth in like manner further covenant that in case possession of any of the railroad equipment or rolling stock so furnished or to be furnished to it by the trustee, as provided herein, shall in the course of traffic be transferred from the railroad company to any other person or persons, or corporations, such other persons or corporations, so long as any of such railroad equipment or rolling stock shall be in their possession, shall hold the same as bailees of the trustee and not of the railroad company, and shall be answerable to the trustee for the same, and the railroad company in any and all arrangements it shall make with such other persons or corporations shall act only as the agent of the trustee and not on its own behalf.

Twelfth. And it is hereby further covenanted and agreed, that in case the retaking of the railroad equipment and rolling stock hereby conveyed shall be made by the said trustee, or in the event that the said trustee shall demand the possession of the same under any of the covenants contained in this deed of trust or mortgage, then the railroad company, and any railroad company or companies having the possession or use of the same from the railroad company, shall, without cost or charge to the said trustee, or to those beneficially interested in said trust, forthwith in the usual manner and at the usual speed of freight trains, draw the said railroad equipment and rolling stock to such point or points on the railroad where the same may be, as shall be reasonably designated by the said trustee, and that the trustee shall have the right, without expense to it, to keep and store the said railroad equipment and rolling stock upon any of the railways or premises of the railroad company until the same shall have been sold, as provided herein, and until a reasonable time for their removal has elapsed thereafter.

Thirteenth. And it is hereby further covenanted and agreed, and the trusts created by this instrument are accepted on the express condition that the trustee shall not incur any liability or responsibility whatever in consequence of permitting or suffering the railroad company, or any railroad company or companies by lease, contract, or otherwise, under it, to retain or have possession and use of the said railroad equipment and rolling stock so furnished or to be furnished to the railroad company by the trustee, as herein provided. Nor shall the said trustee be or become responsible or liable for any destruction, deterioration, loss, injury, or damage which may be done or occur to any of the property hereby mortgaged or intended so to be; nor shall the trustee be liable or responsible for any matter or thing connected with the trust intended to be hereby created, except for its willful and intentional breach thereof; or any act, fault, or misconduct of any agent or persons employed by it, unless chargeable with culpable negligence in their selection, or in their continuance in employment; nor shall the trustee be answerable except for its own willful default or misconduct, or gross neglect; and in case the trustee shall go into possession of said mortgaged premises and operate the same, as hereinbefore provided, it shall be indemnified out of the funds and property which shall come into its hands as aforesaid for all claims and demands against it arising from negligence, carelessness, or misconduct of its officers, agents, or employees, and in all cases the trustee shall be authorized to pay such reasonable compensation as it may deem proper to all attorneys, servants, and agents whom it may reasonably employ in the management of the trust; and the trustee shall be entitled to and shall have just compensation for all services which it may render in connection with the trust, to be paid by the railroad company, or out of the trust estate; that the said trustee may resign from the trust, by notice in writing to the railroad company [and to all known bondholders], at least sixty days before such resignation shall take effect, or such shorter time as may be accepted as sufficient notice, and upon the execution and delivery, if such shall be required, of the necessary deeds of conveyance and transfer to its successor in the trust.

Fourteenth. It is understood and agreed, that the words "unpaid principal of car trusts," when, and as used in these presents, shall be construed to mean the amounts payable and applicable by the trustee, under and according to the provisions hereof and Schedules C¹ and C², hereto annexed, out of bonds hereby secured, or their proceeds to the purchase or acquirement of lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, or securities at such time remaining unacquired by it; and also the words "lease warrants," when and as used in these presents, shall be construed to mean the lease warrants or other obligations for the payment of money given by the railroad company under any of its car trust leases or contracts hereinbefore referred to.

Fifteenth. The railroad company shall hereafter keep at its agency, in the city of _____, and at such place as may be required by the trustee, an appropriate book or books, for the purpose of registry and transfer of the bonds secured and to be secured hereby, in accordance with the terms of said bonds; and any and every holder of bonds secured hereby shall be entitled to have his name and address, and the number and denomination of any of the said bonds held by him, entered therein, upon presenting at the said office a written statement of the said particulars, signed by himself, and, if required, duly verifying his title to the said bonds by the production thereof, or upon written order, duly verified, of the person last registered as the holder. The trustee shall have free access at all reasonable hours and times to such bond registry, and shall from time to time, on request in writing, be furnished with a copy thereof.

The trustee and the railroad company shall keep separate registries of all bonds redeemed or designated for redemption, under the fourth and fifth articles hereof, and such registry of the company and of the trustee shall be at all reasonable times open to the inspection of each bondholder.

Sixteenth. If the railroad company shall well and truly pay the sums of money, principal and interest, and sinking fund payments, according to the terms and conditions hereof, and of the said bonds secured hereby, as the same shall mature and become due and payable, and all other amounts payable by it under the provisions hereof, which said sums the railroad company doth hereby covenant to pay as the same shall become due and payable, and shall well and truly keep and perform all the covenants, agreements, and undertakings herein and hereby assumed and required to be kept and performed according to the true intent and meaning of these premises, then and in that case the estate, right, title, and interest of the said trustee, or its successors, in and to the said mortgaged railroad equipment, and rolling stock, and lease warrants, car trust certificates, obligations, and securities, shall cease and determine and become void; and the said trustee shall, by a sufficient instrument in writing, if so thereto requested by the railroad company, execute a release of this deed of trust or mortgage whereby all the estates, title, right, and interest of the said trustee shall cease and determine; and the said trustee hereby accepts the trusts herein created, and covenants to execute the same: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that the railroad company shall have the right to fix a time after the maturity of the bonds secured hereby, at which payment of all unpaid bonds will be made by it at its general office or agency in the city of _____, or elsewhere, and give notice thereof for a period of at least three months, by advertisement, published weekly, in one newspaper in the city of New York, and in one newspaper in the city of _____, and in such other newspapers elsewhere as the trustee may direct; and as to all such bonds as may not be presented for payment pursuant to such advertisement, the railroad company shall have the right, at its election, either to pay the amount of the principal and interest thereon to maturity, to the trustee herein for the time being, whereupon it shall be the duty of such trustee to enter satisfaction in full upon said mortgage, or grant a release with like effect as though paid to the holders thereof at maturity, and retain the amount so paid by the railroad company for the benefit of the holders of such unrepresented bonds, or to require the trustee for the time being to enter satisfaction upon such mortgage or grant a release to the extent of the amount of bonds already paid and surrendered, allowing the mortgage to stand thereafter as security only to the extent of the unrepresented bonds, with interest thereon up to maturity, after which all interest shall cease and determine upon such unrepresented bonds.

[Here insert articles 27 to 31, inclusive, from Form No. 1320, and insert in their proper order any other clauses from that form that may seem desirable and be applicable to a mortgage of rolling stock.]

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have caused their respective corporate names to be hereunto subscribed by their respective officers, duly authorized, and their respective corporate seals to be affixed, attested by their respective secretaries, on the day and year first above written.

AND, WHEREAS, the company, for the purpose of securing the payment of the principal of said bonds and of interest thereon, and the performance of its agreement according to the terms of said bonds, and of the coupons thereto annexed, intends to deposit with the _____ Trust Company, certain moneys, notes, obligations, assignments, mortgages, or deeds of trust, as collateral thereto, and equal at par in amount to the face of the bonds to which they shall be collateral:

Now, THEREFORE, the parties hereto, for and in consideration of the premises, and of one dollar by each to the other in hand paid, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and other valuable considerations, do hereby agree and declare that the trusts, uses, purposes, conditions, and covenants for and upon which the collateral hereinbefore mentioned and described is deposited with and is to be held and disposed of by the said trustee, are as follows, that is to say:

First. The company has constituted, and does hereby constitute, said the _____ Trust Company the trustee of such collateral as shall be hereafter deposited by said company with the trustee, under the terms and conditions herein set forth, for the purpose of securing the payment of the bonds to be issued by it, principal and interest, as aforesaid; and does hereby covenant and guarantee to and with the trustee and the lawful holders of said bonds that such collateral, other than moneys, shall be valid and subsisting obligations and securities constituting first liens on real estate in the states and territories of the United States of America.

The collateral to be deposited with the trustee under this agreement shall be moneys, or notes, obligations, assignments, mortgages, and deeds of trust equal at par in amount to the face of the bonds certified hereunder, and said company shall assign to the trustee such collateral at the time of such deposit; but until said company shall have made default in the payment of the principal of a bond in a series of bonds against which the collateral so assigned has been deposited, such of said interests or assignments as shall be subjects of record shall not be recorded by the trustee; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that if the attention of the trustee shall at any time be called to the laws of any state or territory now or hereafter enacted, which shall require record of any assignment to be made within a limited time in order to make or keep such assignment effectual against said company, then such assignment may be recorded within the time so limited.

Second. Said bonds are to be issued in as many series as the company may elect; each series to be of such total amount and to bear such rate of interest as the company may at its convenience determine; each several bond of any series may be of such amount as the company may find convenient; each bond to become due at a date fixed upon the face thereof; but an option to pay on or after a date named upon the face of each bond, and before maturity, may be reserved by the company.

Third. The whole or any part of a series of bonds shall, on request of the company, be certified by the trustee and delivered to the company, upon its depositing with the trustee collateral to secure the bonds requested to be certified. Where the collateral securing the whole or any part of any series of bonds shall consist of notes or obligations and of mortgages or other instruments, relating thereto and required by law to be recorded, said bonds shall be certified and delivered to the company upon its depositing with the trustee the notes and obligations, and the delivery to the trustee of such mortgages or other instruments relating thereto may be delayed for the purpose of such recording for a reasonable time after the delivery of such notes and obligations.

Fourth. The collateral deposited under this agreement may bear any legal rate of interest, or may bear no interest; but collateral bearing no interest, except money, shall be estimated at 85 per centum of its face value. Any collateral deposited with the trustee by the company under this agreement may at any time be withdrawn by the company on its depositing with the trustee moneys or other collateral in substitution for and equal in amount to the collateral withdrawn; and all the provisions of this agreement shall apply as well to such substituted collateral as to collateral originally deposited.

Fifth. Whenever the company shall surrender to the trustee any bond issued under this agreement, the trustee shall deliver to the company such collateral as the company may select from the collateral deposited for the security of the series to which said bond belongs, equal in amount, as counted at the time of deposit, to such surrendered bond, and thereupon said bond shall be canceled by the trustee and returned to the company.

Sixth. The company shall at all reasonable times, in business hours, have the right to inspect the collateral deposited by it under this agreement with the trustee, and at all reasonable times in business hours the official examiner of any state or territory of the United States shall, upon the written permission of the company, have the right to inspect the collateral deposited with and held by the trustee under this agreement.

Seventh. Any bond issued and certified under this agreement may be registered in the name of the owner upon the books of the company at its home office, or at any other office designated by it for that purpose, and the fact of such registration shall at the time be indorsed upon the bond so registered. Upon any bond being so registered it shall become and be an obligation of the company to, and valid and effectual in the hands of, the registered owner only; the owner of any registered bond may at any time transfer the ownership thereof, but such transfer shall not be effectual as a transfer of the obligation of the company until the said bond shall be registered in the name of the transferee; and upon and after any registration said bond shall become and be the obligation of the company to, and valid and effectual in the hands of, the last registered owner only, until transferred to bearer and registry of such transfer, after which it shall be payable to bearer.

In the event that notice shall at any time be given to the company that any bond certified and issued under this agreement and which shall be registered as hereinbefore provided, has been lost, stolen, or destroyed, the company may, upon proof satisfactory to it that such bond and the unpaid coupons thereof have been so lost, stolen, or destroyed, and upon receiving security satisfactory to it, pay the principal and accrued interest of said bond to the registered owner thereof, and upon such payment made shall be entitled to withdraw from deposit, and the trustee shall out of the collateral held by it for the series to which said bond belongs deliver to the company, securities equal in value to the face of said bond.

Eighth. Until the company shall make default in the payment of principal or interest of any bond in any particular series of bonds issued hereunder, the said company shall collect, receive, and disburse, under the direction of the board of directors, all interest of said mortgages and all amounts paid as a consideration for the extension of the time of payment of such mortgages or any of them of such series hereunder, and shall have the right to grant such extensions, and to pursue, in law or in equity, any remedy given by the terms of such collateral, and to enforce the payment of such collateral by appropriate proceedings at law or in equity; and until such default the company shall have the right to withdraw from the trustee any of the said mortgages, upon substituting in their place another mortgage or other mortgages of like nature and of equal par value, and in that case the trustee shall at the expense of the company assign to it the mortgage or mortgages so withdrawn.

The company shall also have the right at any time before such default, upon delivering to said trustee one or more of its said bonds, to withdraw from the trustee a mortgage or mortgages aggregating in par value the aggregate par value of the bonds so delivered, and the bonds so delivered shall be thereupon canceled by the trustee, and the mortgage or mortgages so withdrawn shall be assigned by the trustee to the company at the company's expense. If, before such default, any mortgage shall become due, and payable, whether by expiration of the time of the loan or by failure of the mortgagor to pay interest or taxes or otherwise, the trustee shall, upon the request of the company, deliver to the company, at the company's expense, for foreclosure or collection, the said mortgage and all papers and documents pertaining to the same, together with a proper assignment or satisfaction piece thereof; and the company shall proceed to collect or foreclose said mortgage, and shall deposit the proceeds with the trustee within [four months] of the time of the receipt thereof.

Ninth. If at any time the company shall make default in the payment of the principal or interest [of any series] of its said bonds, and such default shall continue for [sixty] days, the whole principal and interest of said bonds [of such series] shall thereupon become due and payable immediately, anything in said bonds or herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding; and the holder or holders of a majority of the bonds [of the series] so in default in the payment of principal or interest of said bonds, may thereupon notify the trustee of such default and of its continuance for [sixty] days, and request the trustee in writing to forthwith proceed to sell the said mortgages in its possession, and upon receiving such written notice and a satisfactory indemnity for the expenses to be incurred, the trustee shall sell all of the said mortgages [belonging to such series] then in its possession at public auction in the city of _____, upon a two weeks' notice, to be published twice in each week immediately preceding said sale in two newspapers published in the city of _____, and at least once in each of said weeks in a newspaper published in the city of _____, in the state of _____. Said notice of sale need not contain a description of each mortgage to be sold but may state simply the number of mortgages, and their aggregate amount, and that a particular description of each may be obtained at an address or addresses specified in said notice.

The trustee may give such further or additional notice of such sale as it may think desirable, but it need not give any further or other notice than that herein specified. The trustee shall sell the said mortgages [of such series] all together or in specified lots or singly, as the majority of bondholders [of such series] shall direct in writing, or if a majority of the bondholders [of such series] do not specify in writing any particular method of sale, the trustee shall have the right to determine whether the said mortgages shall be sold singly, or in lots, or as a whole. The proceeds of such sale shall be applied by the trustee as follows: First, to the payment of the expenses of said sale; second, to the payment of its reasonable counsel fees, in connection therewith; third, to its reasonable compensation as trustee for receiving and disbursing the proceeds of sale; and the balance of such proceeds shall then be paid to the holders of the bonds [of such series] ratably, and without preference or priority in favor of any bonds [of such series] as against any other bonds [of such series]; the surplus, if any, to be delivered to the company, its successors or assigns.

If the net proceeds of such sale shall not be sufficient to pay said principal and interest in full, then the same shall be paid pro rata.

Tenth. At any time after default has been made in the payment of the principal or interest of any of said bonds [of any series] hereunder, and has continued for [sixty] days, and no notice has been given by a majority of bondholders [of such series] as herein provided, the trustee may, in its discretion, though it shall not be under any legal obligation so to do, notify the company not to collect any further interest or principal on said mortgages or any of them, deposited as collateral [for said series] and may thereupon proceed in such manner as it may deem for the best interest of the bondholders [of such series] to collect such interest and principal, and to do such things as it may deem for the benefit of such bondholders, until a sale of said mortgages shall have taken place, and said mortgages shall have been paid for by, and transferred to, the purchaser or purchasers; and the trustee may, at any time, after a default by the company in the payment of interest or principal [of any series] of its bonds has continued for sixty days, and without a notice from the bondholders, sell the said mortgages in the manner hereinbefore provided, but it shall not be under any legal obligation so to do without the notice and indemnification hereinbefore provided.

In case the trustee shall, after a default of said company, undertake the collection or foreclosure of any of said mortgages, it shall be entitled to retain from the proceeds of such collections or foreclosures, or from any other moneys belonging to this trust, the reasonable expenses of the same, including counsel fees and a reasonable compensation for its own services.

Eleventh. When the company shall have delivered to the trustee for cancellation all of its said bonds, or shall have deposited with the trustee sufficient moneys to pay all of its outstanding bonds, the trust hereunder shall cease, and the trustee shall, at the company's expense, assign and deliver to the company, all the mortgages and other property in its possession or under its control, belonging to the company.

Twelfth. The company shall have the right at any time to purchase its bonds at any price below par, or otherwise, and thereupon the bonds so purchased shall be canceled.

Thirteenth. The trustee shall pay to the bondholders, upon their application, all principal and interest deposited with it for them, and will do and perform all other acts and things necessary to be done by it under this agreement (except those provided for in articles ninth and tenth) and including the furnishing of vault space for the custody and safe-keeping of the securities of the company, for the sum of dollars a year for the first two years, and thereafter, if the amount of service to be rendered by the trustee shall be decreased by liquidation, for such less amount of compensation as may be mutually agreed upon.

Fourteenth. And it is further understood and agreed that if the amount of the mortgages and other securities is or at any time hereafter shall be in excess of the amount of the par value of the outstanding bonds of the company, then the company shall have a right to withdraw from the trustee any such excess of securities.

Fifteenth. The trustee accepts the trust hereby created and hereinbefore expressed, and covenants with the said company, and with the lawful holders of the bonds secured by this agreement, that it will faithfully discharge all the duties of said trust according to the terms of this agreement; but said trustee does not assume any risk or obligation as to the genuineness or value of any securities deposited with it as collateral under this agreement, and does not obligate itself to make any investigation as to the genuineness, or value, or the record or records of the same, and shall not in any case be liable for any act or omission, except for bad faith, in the execution of its trust.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Banking Company, and the Trust Company, have executed this agreement in duplicate the day and year first above written.

PARISH OF . }

BE IT KNOWN AND REMEMBERED, that on this, the day of , 18 , before me, the undersigned officer, duly commissioned and qualified, in accordance with law and in the presence of the witnesses hereinafter named and undersigned, personally came and appeared , and , duly aided, assisted, and authorized by her said husband , and also further authorized by the judge of the Judicial District Court of the state of Louisiana, resident of the parish of , state of Louisiana, hereinafter called the appearer , and declared and said to me that whereas do stand justly and truly indebted in solido unto the Company, of , a corporation hereinafter called the mortgagee, which said indebtedness is for money loaned, and is evidenced by the following described promissory note : for the sum of dollars , all payable according to the terms and with the interest, and at the times stated in said note . The said note (and each of them) being dated the day of , , and payable in gold coin of the United States of America, of the present standard of weight and fineness, to the said The Company, or order; and executed by , which said note , being presented to me, were by me duly paraphrased "Ne Varietur," and countersigned in order to identify them with this act.

Now, therefore, in order to secure the full, prompt, and punctual payment of said note , together with all interest accrued or to accrue thereon, together with all costs and charges, in which are included attorney's fees at 10 per cent., as hereinafter fixed and specified, the appearer ha mortgaged, hypothecated, and affected, and do by these presents specially hypothecate, mortgage, and affect, to and in favor of the mortgagee, its successors, assigns, or any future holder or holders (or any one or more of them), of said note hereby secured, all and singular, the following described real estate in the parish of _____, in the state of Louisiana, to wit: [here insert description], together with all the buildings, improvements, appurtenances, and privileges thereunto belonging, or in anywise appertaining, as well as the machinery now upon or which may hereafter be put upon said premises, whether attached or detached.

Whatever may be the form of said note, it is hereby agreed that all of the above-described property is bound for the full payment of said note, and of every one and of all them in full, and it is hereby specially understood and agreed that the said indebtedness is, no matter what its form, to be considered and held as an indebtedness in solido and as binding all parties hereto for the full payment of the same.

The said property is to remain mortgaged and hypothecated, and all waivers, agreements relating to executory process or confession of judgment contained in this instrument, covenants and stipulations to remain in full force and effect, until the full and final payment of the said note in capital and interest, and of all sums due or which may become due under this mortgage, the said appearer hereby binding _____ and _____ heirs not to alienate, deteriorate, or encumber the same to the prejudice of these presents, which are accepted by said mortgagee.

And the said appearer further declared and covenanted with the said mortgagee, its successors and assigns, that _____ had good right and lawful authority to grant, bargain, sell, alien, convey, and mortgage the property before described; that it is free and clear from all incumbrances; that _____ had an indefeasible title to the same in fee simple, which _____ will warrant and defend.

And said appearer declared and said that _____ had agreed, and do hereby specially covenant and agree to the faithful fulfillment of the following stipulations in favor of the mortgagee, its successors and assigns, to wit:

First. To pay the sum of money and interest, as above specified.

Second To keep the buildings on said premises insured in the aggregate for _____ dollars, distributed as follows: _____ dollars on dwelling; _____ dollars on gin-house and machinery; _____ dollars on barn; _____ dollars on _____; _____ dollars on _____; in companies acceptable to and with loss payable to the mortgagee, its successors or assigns (and have the loss on all other policies on said premises made payable to the mortgagee, its successors or assigns); and to deliver all of said policies to the mortgagee, its successors or assigns, and to pay, before the same shall become delinquent, all taxes and assessments that may be laid within the state of Louisiana upon said premises, or any part thereof, or upon the interest of the mortgagee in the said premises, or upon the note or debt secured hereby while held by a non-resident of the state of Louisiana.

But in the event any taxes are assessed and laid on the interest of the mortgagee in the said premises, or on the note or debt secured hereby, the appearer shall not be bound therefor, if, and upon the condition that, the mortgagee may not legally under the laws of the state of Louisiana contract for the payment by the appearer of such taxes in full, to exonerate it therefrom, according to the terms and provisions of this instrument. Yet, if the mortgagee may not legally under the laws of said state, contract for the payment by the appearer of the entire amount of such taxes, but may for any part thereof, then the appearer shall be bound to pay to the extent that it is legal to do so. The mortgagee maintains that it can legally contract for this exoneration in full, but desiring to avoid any infraction of the laws of the state, the intent and purpose of the parties to this instrument is to bind the appearer in this regard, as above stipulated, only by a valid and legal obligation.

And in case of failure so to pay said taxes or assessments, or so to insure and so to deliver such policies; or in case there exists any claim, lien, or incumbrance upon the said premises, which is prior to this mortgage, then the said mortgagee, its successors or assigns may effect such insurance, and may pay such taxes or assessments (and in case of sale may redeem said property), and may pay such claim, lien, or incumbrance, and the amounts so paid shall be immediately due and payable, and shall be deemed a part of this act of mortgage, and the property hereinbefore hypothecated shall be deemed subject, and is hereby specially made subject, to the same and the interest thereon, which is hereby fixed at 8 per cent. per annum, from the date of payment of such amounts: provided, however, that none of the above provisions shall be construed as obligatory upon the mortgagee, or its successors or assigns, or as making the mortgagee, or its successors or assigns, liable for loss, damage, or injury which may result from the non-insurance of said buildings or other failure.

Provided, however, that in case any money is recovered on account of loss under such insurance policies, such money may, at the option of the said mortgagee, its successors or assigns, be either paid to the insured or applied upon the items of indebtedness secured hereunder, whether such items be due or not, in such order as the mortgagee or its assigns may direct.

Third. In case of default in the payment of any one of the installments of principal or interest of the said note, or in case of the violation of any one of the above conditions, agreements, or covenants; or in case any tax or assessment is assessed within the said state of Louisiana against the mortgagee's interest in the said premises, or against the debt or note secured hereunder while held by a non-resident, that then, and in either or any such case, all of the note remaining unpaid at such time, and all the interest thereon, shall, at the option of the holder or holders thereof, and without any notice to the appearer, become due and payable.

Fourth. To permit no waste, to keep all the improvements in as good repair as they are now, and to do or permit to be done to said premises nothing that may in any way impair or weaken the security under this mortgage.

The said appearer herein dispensing with all and every appraisalment thereof, and by these presents waiving and renouncing the benefit of appraisalment and of all laws or parts of laws now existing, or which may hereafter be enacted, relative to the appraisalment of movable or immovable effects seized and sold under executory or legal process, and also expressly waiving and renouncing the benefits of all laws that may be hereafter enacted, in any way extending the time for the enforcement of the collection of the debt hereby secured, or creating or extending a period of redemption from any sale made in collecting said debt; and agreeing that the laws of the state of Louisiana, save as above excepted, now in force relative to the collection of the debt hereby secured, and the application to the payment thereof of the property hereby mortgaged, are expressly adopted and made a part hereof.

It is further stipulated and agreed by the parties hereto, that the note herein described, and this mortgage and all matters relating to or pertaining to this loan, shall be governed and construed by and under the laws of the state of Louisiana, where the money loaned is to be used, without regard to where the mortgage may be executed or delivered, or the payment of the note made.

And the said appearer hereby confess judgment in favor of said mortgagee, its successors or assigns, and such person or persons as may be the holder or holders of said note, or any one or more of them, for the full amount hereof, capital and interest, together with any and all moneys paid by the mortgagee or its assigns, under any of the provisions of this mortgage, and together with all costs, charges, and expenses whatsoever.

Now, in order to secure the faithful performance of the foregoing obligations and the reimbursement and payment of said lawyer's and attorney's fees, costs, charges, and expenses aforesaid, and the reimbursement and payment of all moneys paid by the said mortgagee, its successors or assigns, or any holder or holders of said note, or any one or more of them, for insurance or for taxes or assessments, or for other purposes, under the provisions of this mortgage, together with interest on all such moneys, the said appearer do by these presents further specially mortgage and hypothecate the hereinbefore described property unto and in favor of said mortgagee, its successors and assigns, and all holders of said note or any one or more of them, the amount

And all real property which may be hereafter sold under any mortgage, mortgage deed, trust deed, or any other written instrument which may operate as a mortgage, by virtue of a power of sale contained in the said mortgage, mortgage deed, trust deed or other written instruments, or annexed to, or accompanying the same and which may not be sold under any order, judgment or decree of any court, may be redeemed by the mortgagor, or his assignee or any other parties interested in the said real estate, by paying the purchaser, at such rate, or his assignee, the amount paid with interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum, at any time within one year after the date of such sale. Compiled Laws of 1897, § 3938.

NEW YORK.

Where real property, subject to a mortgage executed by any ancestor or testator, descends to an heir, or passes to a devisee, such heir or devisee must satisfy and discharge the mortgage out of his own property, without resorting to the executor or administrator of his ancestor or testator, unless there be an express direction in the will of such testator, that such mortgage be otherwise paid. Real Property Law, § 250, Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, p. 5060.

In mortgages of real property, and in bonds secured thereby, the following or similar covenants must be construed as follows:

1. Agreement that whole sum shall become due.—The words “and it is hereby expressly agreed that the whole of the said principal sum shall become due at the option of said mortgagee or obligee after default in the payment of any installment of principal or of interest for days, or after default in the payment of any tax or assessment for days after notice and demand,” must be construed as meaning that should any default be made in the payment of any installment of principal or any part thereof, or in the payment of said interest, or of any part thereof, on any day whereon the same is made payable, or should any tax or assessment, which now is or may be hereafter imposed upon the premises hereinafter described, become due or payable, and should the said interest remain unpaid and in arrear for the space of days, or such tax or assessment remain unpaid and in arrear for days after written notice by the mortgagee or obligee, his executors, administrators, successors or assigns, that such tax or assessment is unpaid, and demand for the payment thereof, then and from thenceforth, that is to say, after the lapse of either one of said periods, as the case may be, the aforesaid principal sum, with all arrearage of interest thereon, shall, at the option of the said mortgagee or obligee, his executors, administrators, successors or assigns, become and be due and payable immediately thereafter, although the period above limited for the payment thereof may not then have expired; anything thereinbefore contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

2. In default of payment, mortgagee to have power to sell.—A covenant that the mortgagor “will pay the indebtedness, as provided in the mortgage, and if default be made in the payment of any part thereof, the mortgagee shall have power to sell the premises therein described, according to law,” must be construed as meaning that the mortgagor for himself, his heirs, executors and administrators or successors, doth covenant and agree to pay to the mortgagee, his executors, administrators, successors and assigns, the principal sum of money secured by said mortgage, and also the interest thereon as provided by said mortgage. And if default shall be made in the payment of the said principal sum or the interest that may grow due thereon, or of any part thereof, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the mortgagee, his executors, administrators or successors to enter into and upon all and singular the premises granted, or intended so to be, and to sell and dispose of the same, and all benefit and equity of redemption of the said mortgagor, his heirs, executors, administrators, successors or assigns therein, at public auction, according to the act in such case made and provided, and as the attorney of the mortgagor for that purpose duly authorized, constituted and appointed, to make and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers thereof a good and sufficient deed or deeds of conveyance for the same in fee simple (or otherwise, as the case may be) and out of the money arising from such sale, to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due, together with the costs and charges of advertisement and sale of the said premises, rendering the overplus of the purchase-money, if any there shall be, unto the mortgagor, his heirs, executors, administrators, successors or assigns, which sale so to be made shall forever be a perpetual bar both in law and equity against the mortgagor, his heirs, successors and assigns, and against all other persons claiming or to claim the premises, or any part thereof by, from or under him, them or any of them.

3. Mortgagor to keep buildings insured.—A covenant “that the mortgagor will keep the buildings on the said premises insured against loss by fire, for the benefit of the mortgagee,” must be construed as meaning that the mortgagor, his heirs, successors and assigns will, during all the time until the money secured by the mortgage shall be fully paid and satisfied, keep the buildings erected on the premises insured against loss or damage by fire, to an amount and in a company to be approved by the mortgagee, and will assign and deliver the policy or policies of such insurance to the mortgagee, his executors, administrators, successors or assigns, so and in such manner and form that he and they shall at all time and times, until the full payment of said moneys, have and hold the said policy or policies as a collateral and further security for the payment of said money, and in default of so doing, that the mortgagee or his executors, administrators, successors or assigns, may make such insurance from year to year, in a sum not exceeding the principal sum for the purposes aforesaid, and pay the premium or premiums therefor, and that the mortgagor will pay to the mortgagee, his executors, administrators, successors or assigns, such premium or premiums so paid, with interest from the time of payment, on demand, and that the same shall be deemed to be secured by the mortgage, and shall be *collectable thereupon and thereby in like manner as the principal moneys, and in default of such payment by the mortgagor, his heirs, executors, administrators, successors or assigns, or of assignment and delivery of policies as aforesaid the whole of the principal sum and interest secured by the mortgage shall, at the option of the mortgagee, his executors, administrators, successors or assigns, immediately become due and payable.

A grant of real property is absolutely void, unless the same shall be made to the people of the state of New York, if at the time of the delivery thereof, such property is in actual possession of a person claiming under a title adverse to that of the grantor; but such possession does not prevent the mortgaging of such property, and such mortgage, if duly recorded, binds the property from the time the possession thereof is recovered by the mortgagor or his representatives, and has preference over any judgment or other instrument, subsequent to the recording thereof; and if there are two or more such mortgages, they severally have preference according to the time of recording thereof, respectively. Ibid., § 260, p. 5074.

In mortgages on leases of real property and in bonds secured thereby, the following or similar covenants or agreements must be construed as follows:

1. In default of payment, mortgagee to have power to sell.—A covenant that the mortgagor "will pay the indebtedness, as provided in the mortgage, and if default be made in the payment of any part thereof, the mortgagee or obligee shall have power to sell the premises therein described, according to law," must be construed as meaning that the mortgagor or obligor shall well and truly pay unto the mortgagee or obligee the said sum of money mentioned in the condition of the said bond or obligation, and the interest thereon, according to the condition of the said bond or obligation. And if default shall be made in the payment of the said sum of money mentioned therein, or in the interest which shall accrue thereon, or of any part of either, that then and from thenceforth it shall be lawful for the said mortgagor or obligee, his legal representative or assigns, to sell, transfer and set over, all the rest, residue and remainder of the said term of years then yet to come, and all other, the right, title and interest of the said mortgagor or obligor of, in and to the same, at public auction, according to the act in such case made and provided. And as the attorney of the said mortgagor or obligor for that purpose by these presents duly authorized, constituted and appointed, to make, seal, execute and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers thereof, a good and sufficient assignment, transfer or other conveyance in the law, for the said premises, with the appurtenances; and out of the money arising from such sale, to retain the principal and interest which shall then be due on the said bond or obligation, together with the costs and charges of advertisement and sale of the said premises, rendering the overplus of the purchase-money (if any there shall be) unto the said mortgagor or obligor, his legal representatives or assigns; which sale, so to be made, shall forever be a perpetual bar, both in law and equity, against the said mortgagor or obligor, and against all persons claiming or to claim the premises or any part thereof, by, from or under him or them, or any of them.

2. Mortgagor to keep buildings insured.—A covenant "that the mortgagor will keep the buildings on the said premises insured against loss by fire, for the benefit of the mortgagee," must be construed as meaning that the said mortgagor or obligor shall and will keep the buildings erected and to be erected upon the lands above conveyed, insured against loss and damage by fire, by insurance, and in an amount approved by the said mortgagee or obligee and his assigns, and either assign the policy and certificates thereof or have such insurance made payable to the said mortgagee or obligee or his assigns, and in default thereof it shall be lawful for the said mortgagee or obligee and his assigns to effect such insurance, and the premium and premiums paid for effecting the same shall be a lien on the said mortgaged premises, added to the amount of the said bond or obligation, and secured by these presents, and payable on demand, with legal interest.

3. Mortgagor to pay rent and charges on premises.—A covenant that the mortgagor “will pay the rent and other charges mentioned in and made payable by said indenture of lease within days after said rent or charges are payable,” must be construed as meaning that the said mortgagor or obligor and his legal representatives and assigns, will pay or cause to be paid, and discharge all rent and rents mentioned in and made payable by the indenture of lease aforesaid, and also all taxes, assessments or other charges that now are a lien, or hereafter shall or may be levied, assessed or imposed and become a lien upon the premises above described or any part thereof; and in default thereof, for the space of after such taxes or assessments or after the said rent or rents, or any of them shall have become due and payable by the terms of said lease or by law, then and in each and every such case the said mortgagee or obligee, his legal representatives or assigns may, at option, and without notice, pay such rent or rents, taxes, assessments or other charges and expenses, and the amount so paid, and interest thereon, from the time of such payment, shall forthwith be due and payable from the said mortgagor or obligor, his legal representatives or assigns, to the said mortgagee or obligee, his legal representatives or assigns, and shall be deemed to be secured by these presents, and shall be *collectable in the same manner, and at the same time, and upon the same conditions as the interest then next maturing upon the principal sum hereinbefore mentioned.

4. Agreement that whole sum shall become due.—The words “And it is hereby expressly agreed that the whole of the said principal sum shall become due at the option of said mortgagee or obligee after default in the payment of any installment of principal or after default in the payment of interest for days, or after default in the payment of any rent or other charge made payable by said indenture of lease for days, or after default in the payment of any tax or assessment for days after notice and demand,” must be construed as meaning that should any default be made in the payment of any installment of principal or any part thereof, or of said interest or any part thereof, or of any rent or other charge made payable by said indenture or lease, on any day whereon the same is made payable, or should any tax or assessment, which now is or may be hereafter imposed upon the premises hereinafter described, become due and payable, and should the said interest, rent or other charge aforesaid, remain unpaid and in arrear for the space of days, or such tax or assessment remain unpaid and in arrear for days after written notice by the mortgagee or obligee, his executors, administrators or assigns, that such tax or assessment is unpaid, and demand for the payment thereof, then and from thenceforth, that is to say, after the lapse of either one of said periods, as the case may be, the aforesaid principal sum, with all arrearage of interest thereon, rent and other charges paid by the mortgagee or obligee, shall, at the option of the said mortgagee or obligee, his executors, administrators or assigns, become and be due and payable immediately thereafter, although the period above limited for the payment thereof may not then have expired, anything thereinbefore contained to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding. Ibid., 271, p. 5082.

In any mortgage on a lease of real property the words “together with the appurtenances and all the estate and rights of the part. . . of the first part of, in and to said premises under and by virtue of the aforesaid indenture of lease,” must be construed as meaning, together with all and singular the edifices, buildings, rights, members, privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining; and also all the estate, right, title, interest, term of years yet to come and unexpired, property,

Every conveyance, assignment, or other transfer of, and every mortgage or other charge upon the interest, or any part thereof, of any person in the estate of a decedent which is situated within this state, shall be in writing, and shall be acknowledged or proved in the manner required to entitle conveyances of real property to be recorded. Any such instrument may also be recorded as hereinafter provided; and if not so recorded, it is void against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee of the same interest or any part thereof, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, whose conveyance or mortgage is first duly recorded. If such interest is entirely in the real property of a decedent, the conveyance or mortgage shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the county where such real property is situated. If such interest is in both the personal and the real property of a decedent, the conveyance or mortgage shall be recorded in the office of the surrogate issuing letters testamentary or letters of administration upon the said decedent's estate, or if no such letters have been issued, then in the office of the surrogate having jurisdiction to issue the same, and also in the office of the said county clerk. CHAPTER XLII.

NATURALIZATION.

An alien applying for naturalization must, with the exceptions stated below, be a free white person, or of African nativity or descent, who has resided in the United States for the continued term of five years next preceding his admission, and within the state, territory, or district in which the application is made for a period of at least one year immediately preceding the date of the filing of his petition. Two years at least before his admission and after he has reached the age of eighteen years, he must declare on oath or affirmation, before the clerk of any court authorized by Act of Congress of June 29, 1906, ch. 3592, 34 St. L. 596; to naturalize aliens, or his authorized deputy, in the district in which such alien resides, that it is bona fide his intention to become a citizen, and to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and particularly by name the prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty of which he is at the time a citizen or subject.

By section 3 of the said Act of Congress of June 29, 1906, ch. 3592, exclusive jurisdiction to naturalize aliens as citizens of the United States is conferred upon United States circuit and district courts then existing, or thereafter established by Congress in any state, United States district courts for the territories of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Hawaii, and Alaska, the supreme court of the District of Columbia, and the United States courts for the Indian Territory; also all courts of record in any state or territory then existing, or thereafter created, having a seal, a clerk, and jurisdiction in actions at law or equity, or law and equity, in which the amount in controversy is unlimited. The naturalization jurisdiction of all said courts, state, territorial, and Federal, extends only to aliens resident within the respective judicial districts of such courts.

The declaration of intention shall set forth the name, age, occupation, personal description, place of birth, last foreign residence and allegiance, the date of arrival, the name of the vessel, if any, in which he came to the United States, and the present place of residence in the United States of said alien: Provided, however, That no alien who, in conformity with the law in force at the date of his declaration, has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States shall be required to renew such declaration. Act of June 29, 1906, ch. 3592, § 4.

The Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization in the Department of Commerce and Labor, under the direction and control of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, has charge of all matters concerning the naturalization of aliens. Ibid., § 1.

Not less than two years nor more than seven years after the alien has made the declaration of intention he shall make and file, in duplicate, a petition in writing, signed by the applicant in his own handwriting and duly verified, stating his full name, his place of residence (by street and number, if possible), his occupation, and, if possible, the date and place of his birth; the place from which he emigrated, and the date and place of his arrival in the United States, and, if he entered through a port, the name of the vessel on which he arrived; the time when and the place and name of the court where he declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States; if he is married he shall state the name of his wife and, if possible, the country of her nativity and her place of residence at the time of filing his petition; and if he has children, the name, date, and place of birth and place of residence of each child living at the time of the filing of his petition: and setting forth that he is not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized government, or a member of or affiliated with any organization or body of persons teaching disbelief in or opposed to organized government, a polygamist or believer in the practice of polygamy, and that it is his intention to become a citizen of the United States and to renounce absolutely and forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and particularly by name to the prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty of which he at the time of filing of his petition may be a citizen or subject, and that it is his intention to reside permanently within the United States, and whether or not he has been denied admission as a citizen of the United States, and, if denied, the ground or grounds of such denial, the court or courts in which such decision was rendered, and that the cause for such denial has since been cured or removed, and every fact material to his naturalization and required to be proved upon the final hearing of his application.

The petition shall also be verified by the affidavits of at least two credible witnesses, who are citizens of the United States, and who shall state in their affidavits that they have personally known the applicant to be a resident of the United States for a period of at least five years continuously, and of the state, territory, or district in which the application is made for a period of at least one year immediately preceding the date of the filing of his petition, and that they each have personal knowledge that the petitioner is a person of good moral character, and that he is in every way qualified in their opinion, to be admitted as a citizen of the United States.

If the applicant has filed his declaration before the passage of this Act he shall not be required to sign the petition in his own handwriting.

At the time of filing his petition there shall be filed with the clerk of the court a certificate from the Department of Commerce and Labor, if the petitioner arrived after the passage of this Act, stating the date, place and manner of his arrival in the United States, and the declaration of intention of the petitioner, which certificate and declaration shall be attached to and made a part of said petition.

He shall, before he is admitted to citizenship, declare on oath in open court that he will support the Constitution of the United States, and that he absolutely and entirely renounces and abjures all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and particularly by name to the prince, potentate, state or sovereignty of which he was before a citizen or subject; that he will support and defend the constitution and the laws of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and bear true faith and allegiance to the same.

It shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court, admitting any alien to citizenship that immediately preceding the date of his application he has resided continuously within the United States five years at least, and within the state or territory where such court is at the time held one year at least, and that during that time he has behaved as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same. In addition to the oath of the applicant, the testimony of at least two witnesses, citizens of the United States, as to the facts of residence, moral character, and attachment to the principles of the Constitution shall be required, and the name, place of residence, and occupation of each witness shall be set forth in the record.

In case the alien applying has borne any hereditary title, or has been of any of the orders of nobility in the kingdom or state from which he came, he shall make an express renunciation of his title or order of nobility in the court, and his renunciation shall be recorded in the court.

When an alien who has declared his intention to become a citizen dies before he is actually naturalized the widow and minor children may, by complying with the other provisions of this Act, be naturalized without making any declaration of intention. Ibid., § 4.

The clerk of the court shall, immediately after filing the petition, give notice thereof by posting in a public and conspicuous place in his office, or in the building in which his office is situated, under an appropriate heading, the name, nativity, and residence of the alien, the date and place of his arrival in the United States, and the date, as nearly as may be, for the final hearing of his petition, and the names of the witnesses he expects to summon; and the clerk shall, if the applicant requests it, issue a subpoena for the witnesses so named, but in case such witnesses cannot be produced upon the final hearing other witnesses may be summoned. Ibid., § 5.

Petitions for naturalization may be made and filed during term time or vacation of the court and shall be docketed the same day as filed, but final action thereon shall be had only on stated days, to be fixed by rule of the court, and in no case shall final action be had upon a petition until at least ninety days have elapsed after filing and posting the notice of such petition; but no person shall be naturalized nor shall any certificate of naturalization be issued by any court within thirty days preceding the holding of any general election within its territorial jurisdiction. At the time and as a part of the naturalization of an alien, the court may, upon the petition of the alien, make a decree changing the name of the alien, and his certificate of naturalization shall be issued to him in accordance therewith. Ibid., § 6.

No person who disbelieves in or who is opposed to organized government, or who is a member of or affiliated with any organization entertaining and teaching such disbelief or opposition, or who advocates or teaches the duty, necessity, or propriety of the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer or officers, either of specific individuals or of officers generally, of the Government of the United States, or of any other organized government because of his or their official character, or who is a polygamist, shall be naturalized or be made a citizen of the United States. Ibid., § 7.

No alien shall be naturalized or admitted as a citizen who cannot speak the English language; but this requirement shall not apply to aliens physically unable to comply therewith, if they are otherwise qualified to become citizens, nor to any alien who prior to the passage of this Act declared his intention to become a citizen in conformity with the law in force at the time of making such declaration, nor to aliens who declare their intention to become citizens and who make homestead entries upon the public lands of the United States and comply in all respects with the laws providing for homestead entries on such lands. Ibid., § 8.

Every final hearing upon such petition shall be had in open court before a judge or judges thereof, and every final order made upon such petition shall be under the hand of the court and entered in full upon a record kept for that purpose, and upon such final hearing the applicant and witnesses shall be examined under oath before the court and in the presence of the court. Ibid., § 9.

In case the petitioner has not resided in the state, territory, or district for a period of five years continuously and immediately preceding the filing of his petition he may establish by two witnesses, both in his petition and at the hearing, the time of his residence within the state, provided it has been for more than one year, and the remaining portion of his five years' residence within the United States required by law, to be established may be proved by the depositions of two or more witnesses who are citizens of the United States, upon notice to the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization and the United States attorney for the district in which said witnesses may reside. Ibid., § 10.

If any alien who shall have secured a certificate of citizenship under the provisions of this Act shall, within five years after the issuance of the certificate, return to the country of his nativity, or go to any other foreign country, and take permanent residence therein, it shall be prima facie evidence of a lack of intention on the part of such alien to become a permanent citizen of the United States at the time of filing his application for citizenship, and, in the absence of countervailing evidence, it shall be sufficient in the proper proceeding to authorize the cancellation of his certificate of citizenship as fraudulent. Ibid., § 15.

All the applicable provisions of the naturalization laws of the United States shall apply to and be held to authorize the admission to citizenship of all persons and citizens who owe permanent allegiance to the United States, and who may become residents of any state or organized territory of the United States, with the following modifications: The applicant shall not be required to renounce allegiance to any foreign sovereignty; he shall make his declaration of intention at least two years prior to his admission; and residence within the jurisdiction of the United States, owing such permanent allegiance, shall be regarded as residence within the United States within the meaning of the five years' residence clause of the existing law. Ibid., § 30.

By statute, it is provided that an alien who has been honorably discharged from the military service of the United States may be naturalized on proof of one year's residence. U. S. Rev. St., § 2166.

The children of naturalized persons, under the age of twenty-one years at the time of the naturalization of their parents, are citizens, if dwelling in the United States. Ibid., § 2172.

A seaman, being a foreigner, who declares his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States in any competent court, and has served three years on a United States merchant vessel subsequent to the date of such declaration, may be admitted a citizen on production of his certificate of discharge and good conduct and the certificate of his declaration of intention. Ibid., § 2174.

CHAPTER XLIII.

NOTARIES.

NOTARIES, or notaries public, as they are often called, are appointed by the executive authority of the state or kingdom where they are to act. Their functions are chiefly to attest affidavits, deeds, and other instruments, to protest bills and notes, and to certify copies of instruments. The courts and the customs of merchants, in all nations, respect their acts; but usually in this country the powers of our notaries are to some extent defined in the statutes of the state. In the state of New York, the governor may appoint by and with the consent of the senate such number of notaries in and for the several counties as may be necessary. Executive Law, §§ 101-105. Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, pp. 1661-1665. In several states the common councils or corresponding political bodies of the cities may appoint commissioners of deeds, whose powers are similar to those of notaries except in regard to protests of commercial papers. It is also customary for the governor of the state to appoint citizens of other states and countries, there resident, commissioners of deeds, for the purpose of taking acknowledgments and certifying to official acts and deeds in the states and countries for which they are appointed and where they reside. The chapters on AFFIDAVITS; ACKNOWLEDGMENTS OF DEEDS, and PROTESTS, present the chief instruments used or attested by notaries.

CHAPTER XLIV.

NOTICES.

WHENEVER magistrates, referees, or arbitrators proceed judicially to inquire into and determine a question of rights, the party affected is entitled to notice of the hearing and an opportunity to be heard.

Whenever the right of a party under a contract depends upon a contingency, the happening of which is peculiarly within his own knowledge, he should give notice of its happening to the other party.

All notices which form part of a legal proceeding should be in writing; but in other cases, notices need not be in writing or in any particular form, unless this is required by the statute or contract which raises the necessity of giving notice.

Where notice is required to be given a certain number of days before an act, either the day of giving the notice or that of doing the act may be counted, but not both. The law disregards the fraction of the day. But if the period be so short that this rule would work injustice, it would not be applied. Thus a notice given on Saturday night, for an act to be done Monday morning, might be held not a sufficient two days' notice.

Notices appropriate to the various proceedings treated in this work will be found in their appropriate connection in other chapters.

CHAPTER XLV.

OATHS.

AN oath is a declaration made according to law before a competent tribunal or officer, invoking God to witness the truth of what is said. It may be taken in various ways, according to the religious belief of the deponent. The most usual forms are given. When the oath is intended to be taken upon the Evangelists, its validity is not affected by a mistake in using another book instead.

Oaths to support the constitution and execute and obey the laws are required from public officers, and oaths of fidelity are required from persons judicially selected for the performance of duties and trusts of various kinds, and the forms are usually prescribed by statute.

CHAPTER XLVI.

PARTNERSHIP.

PARTNERSHIP is the relation between two or more persons who are engaged in a joint adventure or undertaking, and are to participate in the profits or loss which may result from it.

Joint ownership of property does not necessarily make men partners. They must have joined in some adventure or undertaking with or in respect to the property, upon an agreement or under circumstances from which the law will imply an agreement to share profit or loss or an agency between them.

Resorting to a division of profits, as a measure of compensation, does not necessarily make men partners.

One who is employed in the business of a firm, in a subordinate capacity, having no interest in the capital nor sharing liability for losses, is not rendered a partner, by the fact that he is to receive a portion of the profits in compensation for his services. To constitute partnership there must be an ownership in profits as they arise; a right to them as the product of capital and labor employed in an adventure in which both parties are interested, and not as a measure of compensation only.

There is no necessity for any agreement in writing or for any express agreement whatever, as to terms of co-operation, in order to constitute partnership. When persons unite in employing property in an adventure for profit, without any agreement to regulate their interests, the law prescribes a code of rules which may be briefly stated as follows: They are recognized as partners. Whatever name they use in doing business is the firm name, even though it happens to be the individual name of a partner. Each is entitled to an equal share of profits and bound to an equal share of losses, whatever difference there may be in value or amount of services rendered or capital contributed. Each partner can represent the whole, within the scope of the partnership business, and as toward innocent third persons, can bind all his associates by his dealings and simple contracts, which do not appear to exceed the bounds of that business. Any one of the partners may, at any time, terminate or dissolve the partnership; and if not satisfied with the share in the final division, which his partners are willing to accord him, he may apply to a court of justice to appoint a person, who shall take the assets, convert them into money, and, after paying the law expenses and the firm debts, divide the residue of the proceeds among the associates, in the proportion of their contributions to the capital, and under the direction of the court. Persons who are willing to abide the blind application of these rules, to their adventure, have no need to enter into written articles. But great advantage is found in written articles, and careful and equitable provisions restricting the partners, defining their several duties and their shares of compensation, and providing a mode of final settlement.

For the special provisions in New York, see PARTNERSHIP LAW (Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, 1909, pp. 3730-3745).

While a partnership exists, however it may have been formed, the several partners have very broad and general powers to act for each other within the scope of the business. Either one of them can deal with the partnership property as if he were the owner; can bind the firm as toward innocent holders, by signing its name to notes, and other simple contracts not appearing to be in excess of his authority, and can contract debts in its name. Each partner is also personally liable for all the partnership indebtedness. But these powers of a partner do not extend to executing a sealed instrument, or confessing a judgment; nor to the making of a general assignment of the assets of the firm for the benefit of creditors, with preferences.

Dissolution of partnership may take place in various ways besides those provided by the articles; as by the death of a partner; by his insanity, or other absolute incapacity; by his assignment of his interest to a stranger, etc., etc.

Immediately after a dissolution of copartnership, a notice should be published in the public papers to that effect, for the information of the public at large, and a special notice should be sent to every correspondent, and every other person who has had any dealings with the company. If these precautions are omitted, one partner will still be liable for the acts of the other, to all persons not having had notice, as before the dissolution.

When the partnership has been once dissolved, no individual member of the firm can do any act by which he can increase or continue the liability of the other members of the partnership. He cannot give a partnership note, or sign any partnership agreement, or do any act to renew any claim against the firm, or to take it out of the effect of the Statute of Limitations.

Besides the ordinary or "general" partnerships, to which the foregoing rules apply, the statutes of most of the states now authorize the formation of "Limited" partnership. The peculiar feature of this is, that one or more partners are permitted to put a certain stipulated capital at hazard, in the adventure; and are not liable for any losses (provided they have, in all respects, complied with the statute) beyond that amount.

Such partnership consists of one or more persons, called general partners, and also one or more persons, called special partners.

In order to form a limited partnership in New York, a certificate must be made and signed by the parties. An affidavit of one or more of the general partners must also be made, stating that the sums specified in the certificate, as having been contributed by the special partners, have been actually and in good faith paid in in cash. The certificate must be acknowledged and filed, with the affidavit, in the office of the clerk of the county in which the business is to be carried on; and, if such business is to be conducted in more than one county, transcripts of the certificate and acknowledgment must be filed in such other counties. Immediately after the filing of the certificate, a copy of the same or a notice containing the substance thereof, shall be published once in each week for six successive weeks in two newspapers of the county in which such original notice is filed, to be designated by the county clerk, one of which newspapers shall be published in the city or town in which the principal place of business is located, if there is such a paper; otherwise in the newspaper published nearest thereto; and proof of such publication by affidavit of the printer or publisher of each of said newspapers shall be filed with the original certificate.

In publishing the terms of a limited partnership, they must be in all respects truly stated, in each newspaper, or the special partners will become liable as general partners.

The general partners only may transact the business of a limited partnership. A special partner may examine into the state of the partnership concerns, and advise as to their management; but his name cannot be used in the transactions of the firm; nor can he interfere in the management thereof, either as agent, attorney, or otherwise, without rendering himself liable as a general partner, except to the limited extent authorized by statute. The business is to be conducted under a firm name, in which the names of the general partners only can be inserted, without the addition of the word "company" or and other general term.¹

Third. The said A. B. shall be the editor, and shall have the entire control of the editorial department of both said newspapers; and may, in his discretion, employ such assistants and correspondents in such department as may be necessary, and at such rates of compensation as shall be fixed by the directors. The said A. B. shall give all needful attention to the conduct of said newspaper, and shall be entitled to receive for his services as editor an annual salary of dollars, payable quarterly, which shall be paid as part of the expenses of said newspaper.

Fourth. The financial and mechanical business of the said newspaper shall be managed by said C. D. and E. F., and they shall give all needful attention to the same. They shall have charge of the publication and printing offices, and receive and disburse all moneys, and employ such mechanics and clerks and carriers, and other business agents, as may be necessary, at such rates of compensation as shall be fixed by the directors.

They shall keep full and accurate books of account of the receipts and disbursements, and of all the business of the association, and of the resolutions and orders of the directors; and the same shall be the property of the association, and shall be open at all times to the examination of the directors and each of them.

The profits shall be ascertained and divided on the first day of , and in each year, or at such other times as may be fixed by the directors.

Sixth. In arriving at the amounts due upon said balance sheet there shall be charged to the expense account all expenses of the business, together with interest on the capital stock of the several partners in the said firm, as herein provided, and also all losses and other charges incident or necessary to the carrying on of the business.

Fifth. The financial management of said firm shall be in the charge of A. B. and each of the copartners, excepting C. D. shall devote his time and energy exclusively to the business of the firm, and during the continuance of this copartnership shall not be engaged or interested in any other business.

Sixth. After the payment of the interest and charges mentioned in the foregoing fourth article of this agreement the net profits of the business shall be divided between the said partners at and after the rates hereinafter specified, the losses to be borne in the same proportion.

A. B., per cent. thereof.
 C. D., per cent. thereof.
 E. F., per cent. thereof.

Seventh. The said partners shall be entitled to draw from said business in each year on account of profits due to them, respectively, sums of money not exceeding the following sums, said moneys to be drawn in equal monthly installments:

- A. B., dollars.
 C. D., dollars.
 E. F., dollars.

Each of the partners shall in addition to the foregoing sums be entitled to withdraw in any one year a sum or sums not exceeding 10 per cent. of the capital standing to his credit on the books of said copartnership at the beginning of said year.

Eighth. It is further agreed that the death of any of the parties hereto during the continuance of this agreement shall not operate as a dissolution of said copartnership, but the same shall be carried on by the survivors until the time when, by the terms hereof, the said copartnership would thereafter expire, and the capital of the copartnership shall remain unimpaired, and no part thereof, except as hereinbefore provided, shall be withdrawn by the legal representatives of any deceased partner before the expiration of this agreement, as herein provided. But the legal representatives of such deceased partner shall be entitled to all payments and credits which the said partner would have received if then living, but shall have no right of active control or interference in said business, but shall have all the other rights, including the right of access to the books of account of said firm, which would have belonged hereunder to the said deceased partner.

Ninth. It is further agreed that if no notice in writing shall be given by any of the parties hereto to the others within three months before the time of the expiration hereof, of his or their intent or desire to determine and dissolve the said copartnership at the date above specified for the termination of this agreement, the said copartnership shall continue for one year after the said expiration, upon the same terms as herein provided, and shall thereafter so continue from year to year until three months' notice of dissolution shall have been given in writing by any of the said copartners or the legal representatives of any deceased partner at the time and in the manner aforesaid.

Tenth. It is further agreed that neither of the said parties hereto shall, without the consent in writing of all the other parties, in any way use the firm name or credit, either directly or indirectly, or by indorsement, guaranty, or otherwise, except for firm business, and none of the parties shall, without like consent, become indorser, guarantor, or surety for any other person, except for firm business.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the said parties have hereunto severally set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

IN WITNESS [etc., as in Form 1446].

PURSUANT to the power for this purpose contained in certain articles of partnership, dated the day of , and made between you of the one part and me of the other part, I hereby give you notice that it is my intention to determine the partnership now subsisting between us under the said articles forthwith [or, at the expiration of months, to be computed from the date hereof].¹

CHAPTER XLVII.

PATENTS.

THIS chapter embraces only forms connected with letters patent, issued by the United States for inventions, designs, etc. The laws of many foreign countries allow Americans to take out patents there, but this subject is not here embraced, nor are patents for land.

The rules of practice relating to the grant of patents for inventions are published for gratuitous distribution. The observance of the forms, in all cases to which they may be applicable, is recommended to inventors and attorneys.

Both citizens and aliens are allowed to take out patents here. In case of the death of the actual inventor, the patent will be issued to his representatives. In case of an assignment, recorded in the patent office, of the whole interest, or of an undivided part interest in the patent, the patent may be issued to the assignee, or to the inventor and assignee jointly, as the case may be.

If it appears that the inventor, at the time of making his application, believed himself to be the first inventor or discoverer, a patent will not be refused on account of the invention or discovery, or any part thereof, having been known or used in any foreign country before his invention or discovery thereof, if it had not been before patented or described in any printed publication.

Application for letters-patent must be made to the commissioner. A complete application includes the petition, specification, and oath, and also the drawings, etc., when required. All the parts of the application should be deposited in the office at the same time. The petition must state the name, residence, and post-office address of the petitioner, designate by title the invention, and contain a reference to the specifications, and be signed by the applicant. The specification is a written description, whose terms are to be so clear that a person skilled in the art or science to which the invention appertains, should be able to construct and use the same. It also should contain a detailed description of the invention, and in case of improvements, point out the particular point to which the improvement relates.

It is desirable that the arrangement of the specification should be framed in the following manner:

1. The preamble should state the name and residence of the applicant, and the title of the invention.
2. A general statement of the object and nature of the invention.
3. A brief description of the several views of the drawings (if the invention admits of such illustration).
4. A detailed description.
5. Claim or claims.
6. Signature of inventor.
7. Signatures of two witnesses.

The specification must be signed by the inventor or his personal representative, and the signature is to be attested by two witnesses. As to the contents of the oath, see the forms given below.

As to the requisites of drawings, it is desirable to consult for detailed description the pamphlet issued for gratuitous distribution by the patent office. Sometimes it is necessary to furnish models in applying for letters-patent, and when the invention or discovery is a composition of matter, the applicant is also sometimes required to furnish specimens of the composition, and of its ingredients. Where the article is not perishable, a specimen of the composition, in proper form for preservation by the office, must be furnished.

The regulations relating to the examination of the invention, and to procedure, will be found in the rules issued by the patent office.

Every patent or any interest therein is assignable, and may also be granted over, mortgaged, or licensed. To be effective as to subsequent purchasers or mortgagees, for a valuable consideration, without notice, an assignment, grant, or conveyance of a patent must be recorded within three months in the patent office. If such conveyance, etc., is acknowledged before any notary public, or any commissioner of the United States circuit court, or before any secretary of legation or consular officers, the certificate of such acknowledgment shall be prima facie evidence of the execution of such assignment, or conveyance. Conditional assignments, recorded in the patent office, are regarded as absolute until canceled with the written consent of both parties, or by the decree of a competent court.

All payments of money required for office fees must be made in specie, treasury notes, national-bank notes, certificates of deposit, post-office money orders, or certified checks. Money orders and checks should be made payable to the "commissioner of patents." Payments may also be made to the treasurer, or to any of the assistant treasurers of the United States, or to any of the depositaries, national banks, or receivers of public money, designated by the secretary of the treasury for that purpose.

All ordinary business connected with obtaining patents may be carried on as well by correspondence as by the personal attendance of the party. Letters should be addressed to the commissioner of patents, Washington, D. C.

Pamphlets containing the patent laws, and directions for proceedings in the patent office are issued by the office, and may be had by addressing the commissioner. New editions are published often, being corrected to conform to the existing state of the law. If correctly followed, they are a sufficient guide in ordinary cases; but more experience is necessary than is often supposed, to enable an applicant to frame his specification and claim a right. In respect to these the general rule is, that the invention must be so fully and accurately described as to enable any person skilled in the proper branch of art or science, to make and use the thing for which the patent is asked; and the parts for which a patent is asked must be defined with precision. Unless the invention is unusually simple, or the inventor has more than average experience in framing legal instruments, it is wise to consult a reliable patent agent or an experienced patent lawyer.

1466. Specification for an Art or Process.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Be it known that I, _____, a citizen of the United States, residing at _____, in the county of _____ and state of _____ [or, subject, etc.], have invented new and useful improvements in processes of extracting gold from its ores, of which the following is a specification:

This invention relates to the process of extracting gold from its ores by means of a solution of cyanide of an alkali or alkaline earth, and has for its object to render the process more expeditious and considerably cheaper.

In extracting gold from its ores by means of a solution of cyanide of potassium, sodium, barium, etc., the simultaneous oxidation of the gold is necessary, and this has hitherto been effected by the action of the air upon the gold which is rendered oxidizable thereby by the action of the cyanide solution.

Instead of depending solely upon the agency of the air for the oxidizing action I employ. to assist the oxidation of the gold, ferricyanide of potassium or another ferricyanogen salt of an alkali or of an earth alkali in an alkaline solution. By this means the oxidation, being rendered very much more energetic, is effected with a considerably smaller quantity of the solvent. Thus, by the addition of ferricyanide of potassium or other ferricyanides to the cyanide of potassium solution, as much as eighty per cent. of potassium cyanide may be saved.

It may be remarked that the ferricyanide of potassium alone will not dissolve the gold and does not therefore come under the category of a solvent hitherto employed in processes of extraction. It does not therefore render unnecessary the employment of the simple cyanide as a solvent, but only reduces the amount required owing to the capacity of the ferricyanide to assist the air to rapidly oxidize the gold in the presence of the simple salt. Consequently the cyanogen of the latter is not used to form the gold cyanide compound.

I claim:

The process of extracting gold from its ores consisting in subjecting the ores to the dissolving action of cyanide of potassium in the presence of ferricyanide of potassium, substantially as herein described.

1467. Specification for a Machine.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Be it known that I, A. B., a citizen of the United States, residing at L., in the county of M., and state of N. [or, subject, etc.], have invented a new and useful meat-chopping machine, of which the following is a specification:

My invention relates to improvements in meat-chopping machines in which vertically-reciprocating knives operate in conjunction with a rotary chopping-block; and the objects of my improvement are, first, to provide a continuously-lubricated bearing for the block; second, to afford facilities for the proper adjustment of the knives independently of each other in respect to the face of the block; and, third, to reduce the friction of the reciprocating rod which carries the knives.

I attain these objects by the mechanism illustrated in the accompanying drawing, in which —

The table or plate A, its legs or standards B B, and the hanger a, secured to the under side of the table, constitute the framework of the machine. In the hanger, a turns the shaft-D, carrying a flywheel E, to the hub of which is attached a crank o, and a crank-pin p, connected by a link b, to a pin passing through a crosshead G, and to the latter is secured a rod H, having at its upper end a crosshead I, carrying the adjustable chopping-knives d d, referred to hereinafter.

The crosshead G, reciprocated by the shaft D, is provided with anti-friction rollers e e, adapted to guides f f, secured to the underside of the table A, so that the reciprocation of this crosshead may be accompanied with as little friction as possible.

To the under side of a wooden chopping-block J is secured an annular rib h, adapted to and bearing in an annular groove i in the table A. (See Figs. 1 and 2.) This annular groove or channel in not of the same depth throughout, but communicates at one or more points (two in the present instance) with pockets or receptacles j j wider than the groove and containing supplies of oil, in contact with which the rib h rotates, so that the continuous lubrication of the groove and rib is assured. The rod H passes through and is guided by a central stand K, secured to the table A, an projecting through a central opening in the chopping-block without being in contact therewith, the upper portion of the said stand being contained within a cover k, which is secured to the block, and which prevents particles of meat from escaping through the central opening of the same.

The crosshead I, previously referred to, and shown in perspective in Fig. 4, is vertically adjustable on the rod H, and can be retained after adjustment by a set-screw x, the upper end of the rod being threaded for the reception of nuts, which resist the shocks imparted to the crosshead when the knives are brought into violent contact with the meat or the chopping-block.

The knives d d are adjustable independently of each other and of the said crosshead, so that the coincidence of the cutting edge of each knife with the face of the chopping-block may always be assured.

I prefer to carry out this feature of my invention in the manner shown in Fig. 4, where it will be seen that two screwrods m m rise vertically from the back of each knife and pass through lugs n n on the crosshead, each rod being furnished with two nuts, one above and the other below the lug through which it passes. The most accurate adjustment of the knives can be effected by the manipulation of these nuts.

A circular casing p is secured to the chopping-block, so as to form on the same a trough P for keeping the meat within proper bounds; and on the edge of the annular rib h, secured to the bottom of the block, are teeth r, for receiving those of a pinion q, which may be driven by the shaft D through the medium of any suitable system of gearing, that shown in the drawing forming no part of my present invention.

This shaft D may be driven by a belt passing round the pulleys s, or it may be driven by hand from a shaft W, furnished at one end with a handle t, and at the other with a cogwheel R, gearing into a pinion on the said shaft D.

A platform T may be hinged, as at w, to one edge of the table A, to support a vessel in which the chopped meat can be deposited. The means by which it may be supported are shown in full lines, and the most convenient method of disposing of it when not in use is shown in dotted lines, in Fig. 1.

I am aware that prior to my invention meat-chopping machines have been made with vertically-reciprocating knives operating in conjunction with rotating chopping-blocks. I, therefore, do not claim such a combination broadly; but

I claim:

1. The combination, in a meat-chopping machine, of a rotary chopping-block having an annular rib, with a table having an annular recess and a pocket communicating with the said recess, all substantially as set forth.

2. In a meat-chopping machine, the combination of a rotary chopping-block with a reciprocating crosshead carrying knives, each of which is vertically adjustable on the said crosshead independently of the other, substantially as described.

3. The knife d, having two screwrods m m, attached to its back, substantially as shown, for the purposes specified.

4. The combination, in a meat-chopping machine, of the reciprocating rod, carrying the knives, the crosshead secured to the said rod, and having anti-friction rollers, with guides adapted to the said rollers, all substantially as set forth. A. B.

1468. Specification for a Composition of Matter.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Be it known that I, A. B., a citizen of the United States, residing at L., in the county of M., and state of N. [or, subject, etc.], have invented a new and useful composition of matter to be used for the removal of hair and grease from hides preparatory to tanning, of which the following is a specification:

My composition consists of the following ingredients, combined in the proportions stated, viz.:

| | |
|--|-------------|
| Water substantially pure | 500 gallons |
| Unslaked lime | 350 pounds |
| Soda-ash (sodium carbonate) | 100 pounds |
| Salt-peter (nitrate of an alkali metal)..... | 20 pounds. |
| Sulphur (preferably flowers of sulphur)..... | 10 pounds |

These ingredients are to be thoroughly mingled by agitation.

In using the above-named composition the hides should first be freed from all salt and impurities, by soaking green hides one day and dry hides eight days. The hides so cleaned are then placed in the said solution, and allowed to remain in it forty-eight hours. They should then be removed from the solution and unhaired in the usual way.

By the use of the above composition the hair is speedily and thoroughly loosened, and the hides, while retaining all of that portion of the substance which can be converted into leather, are at the same time entirely cleaned from grease and other substances which would prevent them from being tanned quickly.

I am aware that a composition consisting of soda-ash, water, lime, and sulphur has been used for the same purpose, and that a patent therefore was granted to C. D., July 10, 18 , No. . I am also aware that salt-peter has been used in depilatory processes; but I am not aware that all of the ingredients of my composition have been used together.

I claim:

1. The herein-described composition of matter, consisting of water, unslaked lime, soda-ash, salt-peter, and sulphur, substantially as described and for the purpose specified.

2. The herein-described composition of matter for depilating and preparing hides for tanning, consisting of pure water, five hundred gallons; unslaked lime, three hundred and fifty pounds; soda-ash, one hundred pounds; salt-peter, twenty pounds, and flowers of sulphur, ten pounds, substantially as described.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Be it known that I, _____, a citizen of the United States, residing at _____, in the county of _____, and state of _____ [or, subject, etc.], have invented a new, original, and ornamental design for watch-cases, of which the following is a specification, reference being had to the accompanying drawing, forming part thereof.

The figure is a plan view of a watch case, showing my new design.

I claim:

The ornamental design for a watch case, as shown.

THIS AGREEMENT, made the day of , 19 , between P. D., of , in the state of , party of the first part, and J. L., of the city, county, and state of , party of the second part, in consideration of the sum of dollars, to each in hand paid, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged:

WHEREAS, the said party of the first part has heretofore obtained letters patent of the United States, for a certain new and useful improvement in rowlocks, by letters patent issued , , and numbered No. ; and,

WHEREAS, the party of the second part desires to make and sell the said rowlocks and to have the exclusive right so to do:

Now, THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH: First. The said party of the first part hereby gives to the said party of the second part the sole and exclusive right to make, use, and vend the said invention throughout the United States and the territories thereof, during the full and complete term of the said patent, and any extensions or re-issues thereof, subject, however, to the conditions hereinafter stated.

Second. The party of the second part agrees to use his best efforts to introduce into general and public use, and make known, and sell and dispose of such improved rowlocks, and that he will keep the general market duly supplied with them from time to time, according to the demand for them.

Third. The party of the second part agrees to pay to the said party of the first part for each pair of such improved rowlocks which he shall manufacture or cause or permit to be manufactured, either by himself or his agents, assigns, or licensees, the sum of , in the lawful money of the United States, as a license fee or royalty upon each and every pair of the said row-

And the said party of the second part further agrees that he will, on the days of and in each year, account to the party of the first part for all and any royalty or license fee as aforesaid, that may be due from any agent, assign, or licensee of the said party of the second part.

Fourth. The said party of the second part agrees that he will keep, or cause to be kept, books of account in which full and complete entries shall be made of all the said rowlocks manufactured or sold by the said party of the second part, his agents and assigns or licensees; and that the said books shall, at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of the said party of the first part, or his attorney duly appointed in writing; and that the said party of the first part, or his said attorney, shall have the right to examine any and all the books of account of the said party of the second part, containing any items, charges, memoranda, or information relating to the manufacture or sale of the said rowlocks. And that the said party of the second part will make and transmit to the said party of the first part, full and true returns on the days of and , in each year, of all the said rowlocks manufactured and sold by him, his agents, assigns, or licensees.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

PENSIONS.

THE subject of pensions is regulated by the provisions of the U. S. R. S. and the acts of congress. Forms and instructions prepared and published by the commissioner of pensions, may be had on application to him. The pamphlet containing them also has laws of the United States relating to pensions. Pension claims are usually prosecuted through a claim agent or pension attorney, whose fee cannot exceed ten dollars, unless an agreement fixing a higher fee, not, however, to exceed twenty-five dollars, is filed with the commissioner.

An honorably discharged soldier or sailor, sixty-two years of age or over, who served ninety days during the civil war or sixty days in the Mexican war, shall, upon proof of such facts, be placed upon the pension roll and receive twelve dollars per month, if sixty-two years of age, fifteen dollars per month, if seventy years of age, and twenty dollars per month, if seventy-five years of age, such pension to commence from the date of the filing of the application. No pension attorney, claim agent, or other person shall receive any fee for services in presenting such a claim or securing such a pension.

Widows, minor children under sixteen years of age, and helpless minors, now on the roll or hereafter to be placed on the pension roll, shall receive twelve dollars per month from April 19, 1908, and the allowance of two dollars per month for each child under the age of sixteen years and for each helpless child shall not be affected. No claim agent or attorney shall be recognized in the adjudication of these claims.

A widow of an honorably discharged soldier or sailor who served ninety days during the civil war, shall, upon proof of his death, without proving it to be the result of his army or navy service, be placed on the pension roll from the date of the filing of the application, at the rate of twelve dollars per month during her widowhood, provided she married said soldier or sailor prior to June 27, 1890. The benefits of these provisions include those widows whose husbands, if living, would, on account of any disability have a pensionable status by reason of having served ninety days in the military or naval service of the United States during the civil war and having been honorably discharged, not having enlisted after January 1, 1865, after a prior Confederate service. No claim agent, attorney, or other person shall contract for, demand, receive or retain a greater sum than ten dollars for services in preparing, presenting, or prosecuting such a claim.

Any widow of a revolutionary soldier who served for fourteen days or was in any engagement shall, if not remarried, receive eight dollars per month from March 9, 1878, and twelve dollars per month from March 19, 1836.

A widow of a revolutionary soldier to whom a pension has been granted in his lifetime, shall, upon proof of her marriage to him and present widowhood, be placed upon the pension-roll at the rate he received during his life-time.

An honorably discharged soldier or sailor who served sixty days during the war of 1812, or a soldier or sailor who was personally named in a resolution of Congress for any specific service in that war, shall receive eight dollars per month from February 14, 1871, but not if he voluntarily engaged in, or aided or abetted, the rebellion against the United States; and his widow shall receive a pension at the same rate, if married to him prior to the treaty of peace which terminated the war of 1812.

An honorably discharged soldier or sailor who served fourteen days during the war of 1812 or was in any engagement, and his widow, shall receive eight dollars per month from February 14, 1871, and his widow twelve dollars per month from March 19, 1886, if married to him prior to that date.

By act of congress of March 19, 1886, the rate of pensions for widows, minor children, and dependent relatives was increased to twelve dollars per month from that date, and the allowance of two dollars per month for each child under the age of sixteen years was not affected; but the act applied only to widows married to the deceased soldier or sailor prior to its passage or married thereafter prior to or during the service of the soldier or sailor. No claim agent or attorney shall be recognized in the adjudication of claims under this act, nor be entitled to any compensation for services in making applications thereunder.

An honorably discharged soldier or sailor who served thirty days in the Black Hawk war, the Creek war, the Cherokee disturbances, or the Florida war with the Seminole Indians, or a soldier or sailor who was personally named in any resolution of congress for any specific service in said wars, and his widow, if not remarried, shall receive eight dollars per month from July 27, 1892. These wars embrace a period from 1832 to 1842, inclusive.

An honorably discharged soldier or sailor who served thirty days in the Florida and Georgia Seminole Indian war of 1817 and 1818, the Fevre River Indian war of Illinois of 1827, the Sac and Fox Indian war of 1831, the Sabine Indian disturbance of 1836 and 1837, the Cayuse Indian war of 1847 and 1848, on the Pacific coast, the Florida wars with the Seminole Indians from 1842 to 1858, inclusive, the Texas and New Mexico Indian war of 1849 to 1856, the California Indian disturbance of 1851 and 1852, the Utah Indian disturbance of 1850 to 1853, inclusive, and the Oregon and Washington Territory Indian war from 1851 to 1856, inclusive, and his widow, if not remarried, shall receive eight dollars per month from June 27, 1902.

The surviving officers and enlisted men of the Texas volunteers who served in the defense of the frontier of that state against Mexican marauders and Indian depredations from 1855 to 1860, inclusive, and their widows, shall receive eight dollars per month from May 30, 1908.

An honorably discharged soldier or sailor who served sixty days in Mexico, or on the coasts or frontier thereof, or enroute thereto, in the Mexican war, or was in battle, or a soldier or sailor who was personally named in any resolution of congress for any specific service in said war, and his widow, if not remarried, shall be entitled to eight dollars per month from January 29, 1887, if sixty-two years of age, or, if not, upon proof of any disability or dependency equivalent to some cause prescribed or recognized by the pension laws of the United States as a sufficient reason for the allowance of a pension, but this shall not include any person who incurred such disability while voluntarily engaged in or aiding or abetting the late rebellion. On January 5, 1893, the rate for such soldier or sailor then on the pension roll was increased to twelve dollars per month, if wholly disabled for manual labor and in such destitute circumstances that eight dollars per month is insufficient to provide him with necessaries of life. On April 23, 1900, the rate was made twelve dollars per month for every survivor of the Mexican war pensionable under then existing Mexican war service pension laws, if so disabled or in such destitute circumstances.

On March 3, 1903, the rate was made twelve dollars a month for all survivors of the Mexican war then on the pension-roll or thereafter placed on it.

No pension shall be granted to a widow for the same time that her husband received one.

A soldier or person in the naval service, disabled by wounds or otherwise while in the service of the United States, is entitled to a pension; but an engineer, fireman, or coal-heaver shall not be entitled to a pension by reason of a disability incurred prior to August 31, 1842.

The widow and children under sixteen years of age^o of a soldier who served prior to March 4, 1861, are entitled to a pension, if he died of an injury received or disease contracted in the service of the United States and in the line of duty.

Besides pensions, bounty lands are also awarded for service in the United States army or navy. Service, to give title to bounty land, must have been for at least fourteen days, or in a battle prior to March 3, 1855, and in the navy or regular army, must have been in some war in which the United States Government was engaged.

In the pamphlet sent by the commissioner of pensions a table of rates is given of pensions allowed for disabilities incurred in the military or naval service, and in line of duty.

CHAPTER XLIX.

POWERS OF ATTORNEY.

A POWER OF ATTORNEY is a written delegation of authority, by which one person enables another to do an act for him.

An agent acting under a power of attorney is usually termed an attorney in fact, by way of distinction from an attorney-at-law.

No one can appoint an attorney in fact who is not legally capable of acting for himself. Not only all persons who are capable of acting for themselves, but even some who are disqualified from acting in their own capacity, if they have sufficient understanding, as minors of a discreet age, may act as attorneys in fact for others. The authority given is termed either general or special; according as it extends to the transaction of all the business of the constituents or grantors of the power, or is confined to doing some special act or business particularly named in the letter of attorney.

Where a power is special, and the authority limited, the attorney cannot bind his principal by any act in which he exceeds that authority. The authority of the attorney is to be strictly construed; though it is to be taken to include all necessary means of executing it with effect.

Hence a party dealing with the attorney in fact of another should look to the terms of the power to see that the authority given is sufficiently broad.

If the power prescribes any condition in its execution, such as for instance the consent of a third person, it must be strictly pursued.

Where a power is vested in several persons, jointly, all should unite in executing it. It is provided, however, by statute in New York, in the case of powers relating to lands, that after the death of one or more of such persons the power may be executed by the survivors.¹

A power is said to be coupled with an interest when the attorney has, by virtue of it, or of the instrument containing it or otherwise, a present or future beneficial interest in the subject-matter. A naked authority may be revoked at any time by the person who gave it, and expires with his life; but a power coupled with an interest is not revoked by the death of the grantor, nor is it revocable at his pleasure. A power of attorney which forms part of a contract, and is security for money, or for the performance of any act which is considered valuable, is regarded as coupled with an interest, and is irrevocable.

One acting under a power giving only a delegated discretionary authority cannot give to another person a general authority to execute the same, unless he is specially authorized to do so by the instrument creating the power. Thus, if a trustee have a power to sell lands, he cannot give a general authority to an agent to sell and convey, or to contract absolutely for a sale; though he may empower the agent to contract, subject to his ratification, and to convey after ratification; but the better practice is for the trustee to execute the conveyance himself. So an attorney, acting under a power, cannot delegate his authority or appoint a substitute, unless the power expressly gives authority to do so.

A revocation of a power takes effect, as to the agent, from the time that it is communicated to him, and, as to third persons, from the time that it is made known to them; but, as respects third persons, the question of notice depends in each case upon its own peculiar circumstances.

The death of an attorney authorized to appoint an attorney under him, and to revoke such appointment at his pleasure, necessarily revokes the power of a substitute so appointed.

Powers of attorney are usually under seal. If the power is to convey land or do any other act requiring the execution of an instrument under seal, the power must be executed and attested with the same formalities which the law requires in the execution of the principal instrument, such as acknowledgment, record, etc.

The attorney, in a simple power of attorney, must act, not in his own name, but in the name of his constituent; and hence, if it is to execute a deed, the constituent, not the attorney, should be named as the grantor; and the attorney should sign the constituent's name, adding his own — thus, A. B. by C. D., his attorney.

1513. Power to Manage Real Property.

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following.] to exercise the general control and supervision over all my lands, tenements, and hereditaments, in the county of _____; to prevent, by all lawful means, the commission of any trespass or waste, or other injury thereupon; and, at my expense, and under the advice of my counsel, M. N., Esq., of _____ [or such other counsel as my said attorney may employ], to sue for protection against any such injury, and to collect, recover, and receive, and compound for, any damages which may accrue by means of the commission of any trespass or waste upon the said lands, tenements, and hereditaments, or any part thereof, by any person whomsoever.

1514. Power to Sell and Convey Land.

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following:] To grant, bargain and sell¹ , or any part thereof, for such price, and on such terms, as to him shall seem meet,² and for me, and in my name, to make, execute, acknowledge, and deliver, good and sufficient deeds and conveyances for the same, either with or without covenants and warranty.³

1515. Power to Mortgage Lands.⁴

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following:] to borrow upon the security of my , in , a sum or sums not exceeding dollars, and to sign, seal, and deliver a bond or bonds for the payment of such sums [here state terms of payment, if the attorney is to be limited in this respect], and to sign, seal, and deliver, as collateral thereto, a mortgage or mortgages upon said estate, with the usual power of sale, and interest and insurance clauses, and other usual provisions and covenants.

1516. Power to Renew Lease and Sell the Term.

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following:] to renew or agree for a renewal of the lease, by which I hold the lot whereon stands my house, known as No. , in street, in city, to lease said house, or to sell and convey said house for cash, or in part for a purchase-money mortgage, and in case of such sale to assign the lease whereby I hold or may then hold the lot whereon said house stands.

1517. Power to Make Partition.

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following:] to make partition and division with the other heirs of my late father, deceased, of his real estate [or, of his estate, both real and personal], and to accept and receive my share of his personal estate; and, upon any partition or division, to enter upon and take possession of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, which may be set off to me as my share of the real estate aforesaid; and to enter into any covenant or agreement respecting my share [and the shares of the other heirs] of his estate [real or personal], which my said attorney shall think reasonable and for my interest; and, in my name and for my use, to demand, sue for, and take possession of, all and singular, the lands, tenements, and hereditaments, sum and sums of money, goods, and chattels, withheld from me, to which I am entitled, and which I may lawfully claim from the heirs, executors, or administrators of my said father, or any other person or persons whatsoever.

¹ A power to sell and convey does not in itself confer a power to mortgage. There is a substantial difference between raising money by mortgage and sale; and a power to raise it by one of these methods merely, puts a negative on the other.

² A power to sell land for a certain sum means for ready money, where there is nothing in the power, or in the usage of trade to manifest a different intention.

³ A power to sell, and on such sale to execute in the name of the principal, such conveyances and assurances in the law of the premises as needful or necessary according to the judgment of the attorney, does not authorize the attorney to execute a deed with covenants so as to bind the principal.

⁴ A power to mortgage is not implied in an ordinary power to sell. It should be expressed. A power to mortgage implies a power to authorize the mortgagee to sell in default of payment, for the power to sell is one of the customary and lawful remedies of the mortgagee recognized by statute.

1518. Power to Effect Insurance.

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following:] to effect insurance on [here briefly designate the property to be insured], with the Insurance Company, in the city of , on such terms as to my said attorney shall seem meet and proper; to sign any application for said insurance, any representation of the condition and value of said property, articles of agreement, promissory, or premium note, and all other papers that may be necessary for that purpose; and also to cancel and surrender any policy he may obtain, and on such canceling, or the expiration thereof, to receive any dividend, return premium, or deposit that may be due, and on such receipt full discharge to give therefor.

1519. Power to Carry on Business.

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following:] to conduct and carry on the business of a merchant tailor at ; to buy and sell , to receive on commission and to manufacture , and all goods and merchandise, appertaining to said business, as he may deem proper; to make and execute, sign, seal, and deliver, for me and in my name, all bills, bonds, notes, specialties, or other instruments in writing whatsoever, which shall be necessary to the proper conducting of the said business.¹

1520. Another Form.

[As in Form 1504 or 1505, inserting at the * the following:] to take charge of my business as manufacturer and vendor of medicines; to purchase and sell, either for cash or on credit, all such articles and property as he may deem useful and proper as connected with said business; sign, accept, and indorse notes, drafts, and bills; to state accounts; to sue and prosecute, collect, compromise, or settle all claims or demands due or to become due, now existing or hereafter to arise in my favor, and to adjust, settle, and pay all claims and demands which now exist against me or may hereafter arise, either as connected with the foregoing business or otherwise; to take the general management and control of my affairs, property, and business, and therein to buy, sell, pledge, or mortgage, and to execute and enter into bonds, contracts, mortgages, and deeds connected therewith, and in general do all other acts and things which he may consider useful or necessary connected with my business, property, and interests.

1521. The Same; A Fuller Form.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that I, A. B. of the city of , being about to depart from the said city temporarily, and about to proceed to Europe, have made, nominated, constituted, and appointed in my place and stead, and by these presents do, make, nominate, constitute, and appoint, and in my place and stead put, Y. Z., of the city of , my true and lawful attorney, for me and in my name, place, and stead, and to my use, during my said absence from the said city, to ask, demand, sue for, levy, require, recover, and receive, all and all manner of goods, chattels, debts, duties, rents, sum and ¹This power is often given in broader terms. A power of attorney given by a merchant "generally to conduct in my place and stead my commercial business, and to sign my name whenever requisite or expedient in the transaction and conduct of such business as to my said attorney shall seem meet in his good discretion," authorizes drawing bills on drawees who had no effects of the principal. Dolus v. Frosch, 1 Den. 367.

sums of money and demands whatsoever due, or hereafter to become due and owing, or belonging unto me, on account of the business now carried on by me in the said city of _____, as _____, or for or on any other account whatsoever by any person or persons whomsoever, and upon the receipt thereof, or of any part or parts thereof, to make, give, and execute acquittances, receipts, releases, or other discharges for the same, whether under seal or otherwise, and to give, execute, and deliver, in my own name, or in the name of my said attorney, all checks, acknowledgments, agreements, and all other instruments in writing of whatever nature, as to my said attorney may seem meet for carrying on the said business; to enter into, and take possession of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments of mine that may be unoccupied or become vacant, or to the possession of which I may be or become entitled, and all and every the real estate of me, the said A. PRE-EMPTIONS AND HOMESTEADS.

THE right of pre-emption in public lands of the United States is granted and defined by the U. S. R. S., and provisions relating to homesteads are contained in the U. S. R. S., and generally the law relating to the above subject and public lands of the United States are to be found in the U. S. R. S., and acts of congress.

Suggestions of the general land office to homesteaders and persons desiring to make homestead entries are to be found in a pamphlet issued by the general land office, for gratuitous distribution. The pamphlet also contains provisions of the U. S. Revised Statutes and acts of congress upon the subject, with instructions and forms.

A separate pamphlet containing tables of vacant public lands in the United States is also issued by the general land office, which is in the department of the Interior.

CHAPTER LI.

PROMISSORY NOTES.

A PROMISSORY NOTE is a promise in writing to pay to a specified person a certain sum of money, and money only, without condition or contingency. A note payable to one or the other of two persons designated in the alternative, or payable out of a particular fund, or upon an uncertain event, or for payment of an unliquidated amount, or for performance of any other act, has not the qualities of a promissory note.

A negotiable note is one which is by its terms either payable to the order of any person, or to the bearer or holder of it, whoever he may be.

A sealed note is not barred by the Statute of Limitations until the lapse of twenty years; and an indorsement of a sealed note gives the holder nothing more than an equitable ownership, subject to all existing claims and defenses by the maker.

A note payable on demand is payable immediately, if the creditor choose to enforce it; and whether he make demand or not, the Statute of Limitations begins to run against it from its date; but he is not bound to make immediate demand in order to charge indorsers.

Where a note is to be on interest, it should be so specified in the note by inserting the words "with interest," or "with use," else the note will not draw interest except from maturity. Where the rate of interest is not specified in the note, and it is made payable with interest, if not made payable at a particular place, it draws the rate of interest fixed by law in the state in which it is made; but if it is made in one state to be paid in another, it draws interest at the rate in the state where it is made payable.

A note payable on demand, but not specifying interest, bears interest only from the time of demand.

Indorsement.— If the payee or holder of a note writes his name upon the back of it, and transfers it to another person, he becomes an indorser, and the person thus taking the note is termed the indorsee. An indorsee may in turn become indorser, by transferring it in the same way. The person who, at any given time, has the right to the note, is termed the holder.

An indorsement in blank is where the indorser writes his name only on the back of the note. An indorsement in full is where the person to whom the note is indorsed is named. Indorsement is an agreement to pay in default of payment by the maker, on the usual conditions of demand and notice. If the indorser wishes to transfer the note without making himself liable, he should write before his name the words "without recourse;" or, if he indorses merely as agent to transfer the nominal title, add the word "agent" to his signature.

CHAPTER LII.

PROTESTS.

A PROTEST is a notarial act, done to furnish convenient evidence, in commercial affairs. A protest of a bill or note is made by the notary taking it to the place for presentment, and demanding acceptance or payment according to the case, and declaring and certifying default. He then gives notice to the indorsers (and other parties, if any, who may be charged upon the bill or note), either directly or through the holder of the paper, who in turn will notify them. Marine protests are declarations of the master, etc., of a vessel, authenticated by a notary, setting forth a disaster and its causes. This is to be first made within twenty-four hours of arrival, and is entered by the notary in his records; and a more extended statement may be afterwards made before him or another notary.

As to statutory provisions relating to protest in New York state, which also apply in the states where the uniform Negotiable Instruments Law was adopted, see Negotiable Instruments Law, §§ 160-189, and 260-268; Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, pp. 3674-3682, 3693-3695.

CHAPTER LIV.

RECEIPTS.

A RECEIPT is a written acknowledgment of a delivery, either of money or of other property. It is executed by the party who receives the thing delivered, and operates against him as his admission of the fact, which he will not be allowed, in a court of justice, to contradict without showing some adequate reason.

Receipts may occur as clauses inserted in the frame of instruments having an independent character; as in a deed or in a bill of lading. In this chapter is only considered the form of drawing a receipt when it is to be given separately.

A receipt which contains nothing but a single acknowledgment that a payment of money or delivery of property has been made, without any special clauses, and without a seal, is not treated in law as of very binding or conclusive effect. It is merely presumptive evidence of the fact admitted. It is in general open to explanation. The rule which applies to written agreements, that they cannot be varied by parol evidence, does not apply to such a receipt; but the party may show the circumstances under which it was given, and may avoid its effect not only by showing that he was led to give it by fraud, or by some serious mistake, but generally by any clear proof that the money receipted for was not actually paid.

A more conclusive character is impressed upon a receipt by affixing a seal to it. It will then be deemed to conclude the party executing it.

Clauses inserted in a receipt which import a contract as to the application of the money, or the effect to be attributed to the payment, may render it conclusive, drawing it within the rule which forbids the contradiction of written contracts. This is particularly true, when the amount of a debt being honestly contested, a receipt is given for a less sum "in full" of the whole.

Whenever an innocent person has acted upon faith reposed in a receipt, in such a way that he would be injured by allowing it to be falsified, the rule which permits it to be explained away by parol evidence does not apply as against him.

CHAPTER LVI.

RELEASES.

THE distinction between a release and a receipt is, that the first, by its own operation, extinguishes a pre-existing right, and, therefore, cannot be contradicted or explained by parol; the second, has never the effect of destroying a subsisting right, but is merely evidence of a fact—the fact of payment—and, therefore, like all other facts given in evidence, may be refuted or explained.

A release by one of two or more creditors or claimants, who must have joined as plaintiffs had an action been brought, is valid and binding on the others, unless it shows that the consideration was not for their benefit. So a release given to one of several joint debtors who must have been joined as defendants if an action had been brought, is valid, and has the effect of discharging all the debtors, if it be under seal. But it is competent for the parties to prevent this effect by expressing in the release that it is not to discharge the other joint debtors.

In general, a release should express a consideration; and it is usual to state a nominal consideration if there is no other; and the instrument should also be under seal.

A general release will be confined in its operation to the demands which appear to have been intended by the parties, notwithstanding general words. Especially where the same instrument is executed by various persons, standing in various relations, and having various kinds of claims and demands against the releasee, general words, though the most broad and comprehensive, are to be limited to particular demands, where it manifestly appears, by the consideration, by the recital, by the nature and circumstances of the several demands, to one or more of which it is proposed to apply the release, that it was so intended to be limited by the parties. And for the purpose of ascertaining that intent, every part of the instrument is to be considered.

But the intention to limit the release to a particular debt must be shown by the deed itself, or by the instruments in pari materia containing the agreement and release.

CHAPTER LVIII.

SEALS.

ACCORDING to the more strict authorities, a seal is an impression upon wax, wafer, or some other tenacious substance affixed to the paper or parchment on which an instrument is written. In many of the southern and western states, as well as in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, this kind of seal has been dispensed with, the courts holding a scroll or device, made by the pen or printed, to be a sufficient seal, if intended as such. In some of the states, the use of private seals has been wholly dispensed with by statute. In others, as in New York, the statutes authorize corporate, official, and judicial seals to be made by an impression upon the paper directly, without the use of wax or wafer.¹

The rules which prevail in the several states, in respect to private seals, are, for greater convenience, stated in the chapter of ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND PROOF OF DEEDS, where the law will be found, in the alphabetical order of the names of the states.

The effects of affixing a seal upon a contract are, in general — first, that it imports or implies a consideration sufficient in itself to support the contract; and second, that lapse of time will not bar a right of action on the contract until twenty years have passed, instead of barring it in six years or such other briefer period as the law may prescribe for unsealed contracts.

CHAPTER LIX.

SEARCHES.

IN examining the title to real property, the conveyancer may look through the records himself, or may, by a requisition addressed to the recording officer, procure him to search for and certify the conveyances and incumbrances. The requisition and certificate is termed a search. In drawing it or filling the blanks (which can usually be procured at the law stationer's), particular regard should be had to the time during which the person searched against has owned the premises, so as to cover fully his period of title in seeking for conveyances etc., and to the times fixed by the statutes regulating other liens, such as judgments, which may affect the property though recovered against him before he became the owner. The clerk who searches for judgments will return those that have been satisfied, as well as those which have not; and satisfied judgments should be inquired into, for they may have been satisfied by a sheriff's sale of the very property in question.

CHAPTER LX.

SHIPPING ARTICLES.

THE statutes of the United States¹ provide that every master or commander of any ship or vessel bound from a port in the United States to any foreign port, or of any ship or vessel of the burden of fifty tons or upwards, bound from a port in one state to a port in any other than an adjoining state, shall, before he proceed on such voyage, make an agreement in writing or in print, with every seaman or mariner on board such ship or vessel (except such as shall be apprentice or servant to himself or owners), declaring the voyage or voyages, term or terms of time, for which such seaman or mariner shall be shipped.

Carrying out a seaman without his first signing such articles subjects the master to a penalty, and entitles the seaman, for his service, to the highest wages given at the port, within three months preceding the time of shipment.

At the foot of every such contract there must be a memorandum in writing of the day and hour on which the seamen or mariners, who shall so ship and subscribe, shall render themselves on board, to begin the voyage agreed upon.

Nothing repugnant to the foregoing requirements can be inserted; but additional provisions not inconsistent with them may be inserted. The courts, however, are careful, in protection of seamen, to inquire into harsh or unusual stipulations, and they will not enforce, against seamen, stipulations which operate to their disadvantage, and are inserted in the articles in addition to the stipulations recognized by this act, unless it appear, from evidence outside the articles, that the seamen fully understood the stipulations and received an adequate consideration therefor.

1626. Form of Shipping Articles.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

IT IS AGREED between the master and seamen, or mariners, of the [name of vessel], of _____, whereof A. B. is at present master, or whoever shall go for master, now bound from the port of [naming shipping port], to [here designate the voyage definitely].¹

THAT, in consideration of the monthly or other wages against each respective seaman or mariner's name hereunder set, they severally shall and will perform the above-mentioned voyage: And the said master doth hereby agree with and hire the said seamen or mariners for the said voyages, at such monthly wages or prices, to be paid pursuant to this agreement, and the laws of the congress of the United States of America, and the custom and usage of the port of _____. And they, the said seamen or mariners, do severally hereby promise and oblige themselves to do their duty, and obey the lawful commands of their officers on board the said vessel, or the boats thereunto belonging, as become good and faithful seamen or mariners; and at all places where the said vessel shall put in, or anchor at during the said voyage, to do their best endeavors for the preservation of the said vessel and cargo, and not to neglect or refuse doing their duty by day or night, nor shall go out of the said vessel on board any other vessel, or be on shore, under any pretense whatsoever, until the above said voyage be ended, and the said vessel be discharged of her loading, without leave first obtained of the captain or commanding officer on board; that in default thereof, he or they will be liable to all the penalties and forfeitures mentioned in the Marine Law, enacted for the government and regulation of seamen in the merchants' service, in which it is enacted, "That if any seaman or mariner shall absent himself from on board the ship or vessel, without leave of the master or officer commanding on board; and the mate, or other officer having charge of the log-book, shall make an entry therein of the name of such seaman or ¹ Not only the termini of the voyage must be stated, but it must be so stated as to render the voyage or voyages definite and certain. A clause providing that the voyage between two ports may be either "direct or via ports in the East Indies or Europe," since it leaves the master at liberty to make such voyagea thither as he pleases, leaves the seaman at liberty to abandon the service. Snow v. Wopec, 2 Curt. U. Ct. 801.

mariner, on the day on which he shall so absent himself; and if such seaman or mariner shall return to his duty within forty-eight hours, such seaman or mariner shall forfeit three days' pay for every day which he shall so absent himself, to be deducted out of his wages; but if any seaman or mariner shall absent himself for more than forty-eight hours at one time, he shall forfeit all wages due to him, and all his goods and chattels which were on board the said ship or vessel, or in any store where they may have been lodged at the time of his desertion, to the use of the owner or owners of the said ship or vessel, and moreover shall be liable to pay him or them all damages which he or they may sustain by being obliged to hire other seamen or mariners in his or their place."

AND IT IS FURTHER AGREED, that in case of desertion, death, or imprisonment the wages are to cease.

AND IT IS FURTHER AGREED, by both parties that each and every lawful command which the said master or other officer shall think necessary hereafter to issue for the effectual government of the said vessel, suppressing immorality and vice of all kinds, shall be strictly complied with, under the penalty of the person or persons disobeying, forfeiting his or their whole wages or hire, together with everything belonging to him or them on board the said vessel.

AND IT IS FURTHER AGREED ON, that no officer or seaman belonging to the said vessel shall demand or be entitled to his wages, or any part thereof, until the arrival of said vessel at the said vessel's final port of discharge, and her cargo delivered.

AND IT IS HEREBY FURTHER AGREED, between the master, officers, and seamen of the said vessel, that whatever apparel, furniture, and stores each of them may receive into their charge, belonging to the said vessel, shall be accounted for on her return; and in case anything shall be lost or damaged through their carelessness or inefficiency, it shall be made good by such officer or seaman, by whose means it may happen, to the master and owners of the said vessel.

AND IT IS HEREBY EXPRESSLY AGREED, that should the said ship on the said voyage be seized, detained, or fined, for smuggling tobacco, or any other article, by one or more of the undersigned sailors, cooks, or stewards, they shall all be responsible for the damages thence resulting, and shall severally forfeit their wages, and all their goods and chattels on board to the amount of such damage, and that the certificate of the person or persons who may seize, detain, or fine the said ship for smuggling, signed by him or them, and verified by the American consul at _____ under his seal of office, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated in all courts whatsoever, and especially as to the fact that smuggling had been committed, the individual or individuals by whom the same had been committed, the amount of the fine imposed therefor upon the said ship, the incidental expenses thereon, and the number of days the said ship was detained in consequence thereof. No grog allowed, and none to be put on board by the crew; and no profane language allowed, nor any sheath-knives permitted to be brought or used on board.

AND WHEREAS, it is customary for the officers and seamen while the vessel is in port, or while the cargo is delivering, to go on shore at night to sleep, greatly to the prejudice of such vessel and freighters,

BE IT FURTHER AGREED, by the said parties, that neither officer nor seaman shall, on any pretense whatever, be entitled to such indulgence, but shall do their duty by day in discharge of the cargo, and keep such watch by night as the master shall think necessary to order relative to said vessel or cargo;

AND WHEREAS, it frequently happens that the owner or captain incurs expenses while in a foreign port, relative to the imprisonment of one or more of his officers or crew, or in the attendance of nurses, or in the payment of board on shore, for the benefit of such person or persons:

NOW IT IS UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED by the parties hereunto, that all such expenditures as may be incurred by reason of the foregoing premises, shall be charged to, and deducted out of the wages of, any officer or such one of the crew by whose means or for whose benefit the same shall have been paid.

AND WHEREAS, it often happens that part of the cargo is embezzled after being safely delivered into lighters, and as such losses are made good by the owners of the vessel:

BE IT THEREFORE AGREED BY THESE PRESENTS, that whatever officer or seaman the master shall think proper to appoint, shall take charge of her cargo in the lighters, and go with it to the lawful quay, and there deliver his charge to the vessel's husband, or his representative, to see the same safely landed.

THAT each seaman or mariner who shall well and truly perform the above-mentioned voyage (provided always that there be no desertion, plunderage, embezzlement or other unlawful acts committed on the said vessel's cargo or stores), shall be entitled to the payment of the wages or hire that may become due to him pursuant to this agreement, as to their names is severally affixed and set forth: Provided, nevertheless, that if any of the said crew disobey the orders of the said master or other officer of the said vessel, or absent himself at any time without liberty, his wages due at the time of such disobedience or absence shall be forfeited; and in case such person or persons so forfeiting wages shall be reinstated or permitted to do further duty, it shall not do away such forfeiture.

IT BEING UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED, by the said parties, that parol proof of the misconduct, absence, or desertion of any officer or any of the crew of said vessel, may be given in evidence at any trial between the parties to this contract, any act, law, or usage to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, and for the due performance of each and every of the above-mentioned articles and agreements, and acknowledgment of their being voluntarily, and without compulsion or any other clandestine means being used, agreed to and signed by us, we have each and every of us hereunto affixed our hands; the month and day against our names as hereunder written.

AND IT IS HEREBY UNDERSTOOD AND MUTUALLY AGREED, by and between the parties aforesaid, that they will render themselves on board the said vessel, on or before [Saturday] the day of , at o'clock in the noon. [Here set down in columns the date of entry; signature by the seamen; stations; birthplace; age; height in feet and inches; wages per month; advance wages; advance abroad; hospital money; time of service in months and days; whole wages; wages due; sureties; and witnesses of the signing of each, substantially as follows.]

On the back of the articles there is usually a receipt in full, in the following form:

RECEIPT TO BE ANNEXED TO THE FOREGOING.

We, the undersigned, late mariners on board the _____, on her late voyage described on the other side of this instrument, and now performed to this place of payment, do hereby, each one for ourselves, with our signatures, acknowledge to have received of _____, agent or owner of said _____, the full sum hereunder set against our names; being in full amount of our wages for our services, and all demands, for assault and battery, or imprisonment, of whatever name or nature, against said _____, her owners or officers, to the day or date hereunder also set against our names. SUBSCRIPTION PAPERS.

SUBSCRIPTION PAPERS, like all other contracts, require both a party to contract with and a consideration, to make them valid and binding; but, from their simple and informal nature, they are often defective in these respects, and sometimes prove entirely nugatory on this account. The object of the subscription should be clearly stated, the party to whom it is to be paid and the consideration. Where, however, the paper imports a request to the body who are to apply the fund, and they go on and incur liabilities on the faith of the subscription, the consideration may be inferred from the facts; and in such a case, the subscription becomes binding from the time of the acts constituting the consideration.

CHAPTER LXIII.

TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHT.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE REGISTRATION OF TRADE-MARKS.

A TRADE-MARK is a name, symbol, figure, letter, form or device used by a person, firm or corporation for the purposes of denoting the true source, origin and ownership of the goods, to which the mark, etc., is applied. Its object is two-fold; first, to protect the party using it from competition with inferior articles; and, second, to protect the public from imposition.

Acts of congress, approved respectively March 20, 1905 and May 4, 1906, provide for the general registration of trade-marks, and are substantially as follows:

The owner of a trade-mark used in commerce with foreign nations, or among the several states, or with Indian tribes, if such owner is domiciled within the United States, or resides in or is located in any foreign country which, by treaty, convention or law, affords similar privileges to United States citizens, may obtain registration for such trade-mark by filing in the patent office a written application therefor, stating his name, domicile, location, and citizenship; the class of merchandise and the particular description of goods comprised in such class to which the trade-mark is appropriated; a statement of the mode in which the same is applied and affixed to goods, and the length of time during which the trade-mark has been used. A description of the trade-mark itself, shall be included, if desired by the applicant or required by the commissioner, provided such description is of a character to meet the approval of the commissioner; also a drawing of the trade-mark, signed by the applicant or his attorney, and a required number of specimens of the trade-mark as actually used, with a fee of ten dollars, and the applicant must otherwise comply with the requirements of the act and the regulations of the commissioner of patents.

The application must be accompanied by a written declaration of the form specified in the law and shown in the forms under this chapter.

No mark by which the goods of the owner of the mark may be distinguished from other goods of the same class shall be refused registration as a trade-mark on account of the nature of such mark unless such mark—

(a) Consists of or comprises immoral or scandalous matter.

(b) Consists of or comprises the flag or coat of arms or other insignia of the United States, or any simulation thereof, or of any state or municipality, or of any foreign nation, or of any design or picture that has been or may hereafter be adopted by any fraternal society as its emblem: Provided, That trade-marks which are identical with a registered or known trade-mark owned and in use by another, and appropriated to merchandise of the same descriptive properties, or which so nearly resemble a registered or known trade-mark owned and in use by another, and appropriated to merchandise of the same descriptive properties, as to be likely to cause confusion or mistake in the mind of the public, or to deceive purchasers, shall not be registered: Provided, That no mark which consists merely in the name of an individual, firm, corporation or association, not written, printed, impressed or woven in some particular or distinctive manner, or in association with a portrait of the individual, or merely in words or devices which are descriptive of the goods with which they are used, or of the character or quality of such goods, or merely a geographical name or term, shall be registered under the terms of this act: Provided, further, That no portrait of a living individual may be registered as a trade-mark except by the consent of such individual evidenced by an instrument in writing: And provided further, That nothing herein shall prevent the registration of any mark used by the applicant or his predecessors, or by those from whom title to the mark is derived, in commerce with foreign nations or among the several states, or with Indian tribes, which was in actual and exclusive use as a trade-mark of the applicant or his predecessors from whom he derived title for ten years next preceding the passage of this act.

If on examination made by the commissioner of patents, the applicant appears entitled to have his trade-mark registered, the mark shall be published at least once in the Official Gazette of the patent office. And within thirty days after such publication, an opposition may be filed by any person believing himself damaged by the registration of the mark.

The registration shall remain in force for twenty years, except that trade-marks previously registered in foreign countries shall cease to be in force when the foreign trade-mark ceases, and in no case shall remain in force for more than twenty years unless renewed. Renewals of twenty years may be had on payment of the renewal fees, but request for renewal must be made not more than six months prior to the expiration of the period of original issue or renewal.

Registered trade-marks may be canceled by the commissioner of patents in certain cases. Appeals are provided for.

Fees on each application for registration are $10; on an application for renewal, $10; on filing notice of opposition, $10; on appeal from the examiner in charge to the commissioner of patents, $15. Copies of the law governing trade-marks and of the rules of the patent office are furnished upon application to the patent office and should be carefully followed.

Trade-mark treaties have been made with Austro-Hungary, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Roumania, Russia, Servia and Spain.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE REGISTRATION OF CLAIMS TO COPYRIGHT.

Copyright under the act of congress entitled: "An act to amend and consolidate the acts respecting copyright," approved March 4, 1909, is ordinarily secured by printing and publishing a copyrightable work with a notice of claim in the form prescribed by the statute. Registration can only be made after such publication, but the statute expressly provides, in certain cases, for registration of manuscript works. This registration is now under the charge of the library of congress, copyright office.

The persons entitled by the act to copyright protection for their works are:

(1) The author of the work, if he is: (a) A citizen of the United States, or (b) A resident alien domiciled in the United States at the time of the first publication of his work, or (c) A citizen or subject of any country which grants either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law, to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens. The existence of reciprocal copyright conditions is determined by presidential proclamation.*

(2) The proprietor of a work. The word "proprietor" is here used to indicate a person who derives his title to the work from the author. If the author of the work should be a person who could not himself claim the benefit of the copyright act, the proprietor can not claim it.

(3) The executors, administrators or assigns of the above-mentioned author or proprietor.

After the publication of any work entitled to copyright, the claimant of copyright should register this claim in the copyright office. An action for infringement of copyright can not be maintained in court until the provisions with respect to the deposit of copies and registration of such work shall have been complied with. A certificate of registration is issued to the applicant and duplicates thereof may be obtained on payment of the statutory fee of fifty cents.

*Presidential copyright proclamations have been issued securing to the citizens or subjects of the following countries copyright privileges in the United States: Austria, Belgium, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain and her possessions, Guatemala, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Luxemburg, Mexico, Netherlands (Holland) and possessions, Nicaragua, Norway, Portugal, Salvador, Spain and Switzerland.

The act provides that no copyright shall subsist in the original text of any work published prior to July 1, 1909, which has not been already copyrighted in the United States. The works for which copyright may be secured are divided into eleven classes, as follows:

(a) Books.—This term includes all printed literary works (except dramatic compositions) whether published in the ordinary shape of a book or pamphlet, or printed as a leaflet, card, or single page. The term "book" as used in the law includes tabulated forms of information, frequently called charts; tables of figures showing the results of mathematical computations, such as logarithmic tables; interest, cost, and wage tables, etc., single poems, and the words of a song when printed and published without music; librettos; descriptions of moving pictures or spectacles; encyclopædias; catalogues; directories; gazetteers and similar compilations; circulars or folders containing information in the form of reading matter other than mere lists of articles, names and addresses, and literary contributions to periodicals or newspapers.

The term "book" can not be applied to—Blank books for use in business or in carrying out any system of transacting affairs, such as record books, account books, memorandum books, diaries or journals, bank deposit and check books; forms of contracts or leases which do not contain original copyrightable matter; coupons; forms for use in commercial, legal, or financial transactions, which are wholly or partly blank and whose value lies in their usefulness and not in their merit as literary compositions. Directions on scales or dials, or mathematical or other instruments; puzzles; games; re-buses; labels; wrappers; formulæ on boxes, bottles, and other receptacles of articles for sale or meant to accompany such articles. Advertisements or catalogues which merely set forth the names, prices, and places where articles are for sale. Prefaces or other introductory matter to works not themselves entitled to copyright protection, such as blank books. Calendars are not capable of registration as such, but if they contain copyrightable reading matter or pictures they may be registered either as "books" or as "prints" according to the nature of the copyrightable matter.

(b) Periodicals.—This term includes newspapers, magazines, reviews, and serial publications appearing oftener than once a year; bulletins or proceedings of societies, etc., which appear regularly at intervals of less than a year; and, generally, periodical publications which would be registered as second-class matter at the post-office.

(c) Lectures, sermons, addresses, or similar productions, prepared for oral delivery.

(d) Dramatic and dramatico-musical compositions, such as dramas, comedies, operas, operettas and similar works.

The designation "dramatic composition" does not include the following: dances, ballets, or other choregraphic works; tableaux and moving picture shows; stage settings or mechanical devices by which dramatic effects are produced, or "stage business;" animal shows, sleight-of-hand performances, acrobatic or circus tricks of any kind; descriptions of moving pictures or of settings for the production of moving pictures. (These, however, when printed and published, are registrable as "books.")

Dramatico-musical compositions include principally operas, operettas, and musical comedies, or similar productions which are to be acted as well as sung. Ordinary songs, even when intended to be sung from the stage in a dramatic manner, or separately published songs from operas and operettas, should be registered as musical compositions, not dramatico-musical compositions.

(e) Musical compositions, including other vocal and all instrumental compositions, with or without words. But when the text is printed alone it should be registered as a "book," not as a "musical composition."

"Adaptations" and "arrangements" may be registered as "new works" under the provisions of section 6. Mere transpositions into different keys are not expressly provided for in the copyright act; but if published with copyright notice and copies are deposited with application, registration will be made.

(f) Maps.—This term includes all cartographical works, such as terrestrial maps, plats, marine charts, star maps, but not diagrams, astrological charts, landscapes, or drawings of imaginary regions which do not have a real existence.

(g) Works of art.—This term includes all works belonging fairly to the so-called fine arts. (Paintings, drawings, and sculpture.)

Productions of the industrial arts utilitarian in purpose and character are not subject to copyright registration, even if artistically made or ornamented. No copyright exists in toys, games, dolls, advertising novelties, instruments or tools of any kind, glassware, embroideries, garments, laces, woven fabrics, or any similar articles.

(h) Reproductions of works of art.—This term refers to such reproductions (engravings, woodcuts, etchings, casts, etc.) as contain in themselves an artistic element distinct from that of the original work of art which has been reproduced.

(i) Drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character.—This term includes diagrams or models illustrating scientific or technical works, architects' plans, designs for engineering work, etc.

(j) Photographs.—This term covers all positive prints from photographic negatives, including those from moving-picture films (the entire series being counted as a single photograph), but not photogravures, half tones, and other photo-engravings.

(k) Prints and pictorial illustrations.—This term comprises all printed pictures not included in the various other classes enumerated above.

Articles of utilitarian purposes do not become capable of copyright registration because they consist in part of pictures which in themselves are copyrightable, e. g., puzzles, games, rebuses, badges, buttons, buckles, pins, novelties of every description, or similar articles. Postal cards can not be copyrighted as such. The pictures thereon may be registered as "prints or pictorial illustrations" or as "photographs." Text matter on a postal card may be of such a character that it may be registered as a "book." Mere ornamental scrolls, combinations of lines and colors, decorative borders, and similar designs, or ornamental letters or forms of type are not included in the designation "prints and pictorial illustrations." Trade-marks can not be copyrighted nor registered in the copyright office.

Copyright registration may be secured for unpublished and published works.

Unpublished works are such as have not at the time of registration been printed or reproduced in copies for sale, or been publicly distributed. They include: (a) Lectures, sermons, addresses, or similar productions for oral delivery; (b) dramatic and musical compositions; (c) photographic prints; (d) works of art (painting, drawings, and sculpture), and (e) plastic works.

In order to secure copyright in such unpublished works, the following steps are necessary:

(1) In the case of lectures, sermons, addresses, and dramatic and musical compositions, deposit one typewritten or manuscript copy of the work. This copy should be in convenient form, clean and legible, the leaves securely fastened together, and should bear the title of the work corresponding to that given in the application. The entire work in each case should be deposited. It is not sufficient to deposit a mere outline or epitome, or in the case of a play, a mere scenario, or a scenario with the synopsis of the dialogue.

(2) In the case of photographs, deposit one copy of a positive print of the work. (Photo-engravings or photogravures are not photographs within the meaning of this provision.)

(3) In the case of works of art, models or designs for works of art, or drawings or plastic works of a scientific or technical character, deposit a photographic reproduction.

In each case the deposited article should be accompanied by an application for registration and a money order for the amount of the statutory fee.

Any work which has been registered as an unpublished work, if reproduced in copies for sale or distribution, must be deposited a second time (two copies, accompanied by an application for registration and the statutory fee) in the same manner as is required in the case of works published in the first place.

After publication of the work with the copyright notice inscribed, two complete copies of the best edition of the work must be sent to the copyright office, with a proper application for registration correctly filled out and a money order for the amount of the legal fee. The statute requires that the deposit of the copyright work shall be made "promptly," which has been defined as "without unnecessary delay." It is not essential, however, that the deposit be made on the very day of publication.

Published works are such as are printed or otherwise produced and "placed on sale, sold, or publicly distributed" (i. e., so that all persons who desire copies may obtain them without restriction or condition other than that imposed by the copyright law). Representation on the stage of a play is not a publication of it, nor is the public performance of a musical composition publication. Works intended for sale or general distribution must first be printed with the statutory form of copyright notice inscribed on every copy intended to be circulated.

The ordinary form of copyright notice for books, periodicals, dramatic and musical compositions is "Copyright, 19 (the year of publication), by A. B. (the name of the claimant)." The name of the claimant printed in the notice should be the real name of a living person, or his trade-name if he always uses one (but not a pseudonym or pen name), or the name of the firm or corporation claiming to own the copyright. The copyright notice should not be printed in the name of one person for the benefit of another. The beneficiary's name should be printed in such cases.

In the case of maps, photographs, reproductions of works of art, prints or pictorial illustrations, works of art, models or designs for works of art, and plastic works of a scientific or technical character, the notice may consist of the letter, C, inclosed within a circle, thus ©, accompanied with the initials, monogram, mark, or symbol of the copyright proprietor. But in such case the name itself of the copyright proprietor must appear on some accessible portion of the work, or on the mount of the picture or map, or on the margin, back, or permanent base or pedestal of the work.

The prescribed notice must be affixed to each copy of the work published or offered for sale in the United States. But no notice is required in the case of foreign books printed abroad seeking ad interim protection in the United States, as provided in section 21 of the copyright act.

The following works must be manufactured in the United States in order to secure copyright:

(a) All "books" in the English language and books in any language by a citizen or domiciled resident of the United States must be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, either by hand or by the aid of any kind of typesetting machine, or from plates made within the limits of the United States from type set therein, or, if the text of such books be produced by lithographic process or photo-engraving process, then by a process wholly performed within the limits of the United States; and the printing of the text and binding of the book must be performed within the limits of the United States.

(b) All illustrations within a book produced by lithographic process or photo-engraving process and all separate lithographs or photo-engravings must be produced by lithographic or photo-engraving process wholly performed within the limits of the United States, except when the subjects represented in such illustrations in a book or such separate lithographs or photo-engravings "are located in a foreign country and illustrate a scientific work or reproduce a work of art."

Books by foreign authors in any language other than English are not required to be printed in the United States.

In the case of books printed abroad in the English language an ad interim term of copyright of thirty days from registration made in the copyright office within thirty days after publication abroad may be secured; but in order to extend the copyright to the full term of protection, an addition of the work must be published in the United States within the thirty days ad interim term, printed or produced within the limits of the United States as required in section 15 of the copyright act.

The application for copyright registration required to be sent with each work must state the following facts, without which no registration can be made:

- (1) The name and address of the claimant of copyright.
- (2) The nationality of the author of the work.
- (3) The title of the work.
- (4) The name and address of person to whom certificate is to be sent.
- (5) In the case of all published works the actual date (year, month, and day) when the work was published.

In addition, it is desirable that the application should state for record the name of the author. If, however, the work is published anonymously or under a pseudonym and it is not desired to place on record the real name of the author, this may be omitted. In the case of works made for hire, the employer may be given as the author. By the nationality of the author is meant citizenship, not race; a person naturalized in the United States should be described as an American. An author, a citizen of a foreign country having no copyright relation with the United States, may secure copyright in this country, if at the time of publication of his work he is a permanent resident of the United States. The fact of such permanent residence in the United States should be expressly stated in the application. Care should be taken that the title of the work, the name of the author, and the name of the copyright claimant should be correctly stated in the application, and that they should agree exactly with the same statements made in the work itself.

A copy of the copyright law, and of the rules of the United States supreme court governing suits upon copyrights, and copies of the rules of the copyright office, are published in pamphlet form, and can be obtained upon application, to the library of congress, copyright office, and should be consulted. The copyright office also issues the following application forms, which will be furnished on request, and should be used when applying for copyright registration:

- A1. Book by citizen or resident of the United States.
- A1. New ed. New edition of book by citizen or resident of the United States.
- A1 for. Book by citizen or resident of a foreign country, but manufactured in the United States.
- A2. Edition printed in the United States of a book originally published abroad in the English language.

- G. Work of art (painting, drawing, or sculpture); or model or design for a work of art.
- H. Reproduction of a work of art.
- I. Drawing or plastic work of a scientific or technical character.
- J¹. Photograph published for sale.
- J². Photograph not reproduced for sale.
- K. Print or pictorial illustration.

CHAPTER LXIV.

TRUSTS.

A TRUST is a confidence reposed in one person, who is termed the trustee, for the benefit of another, who is called the cestui que trust; and it is a confidence respecting property, which is thus held by the former for the benefit of the latter. Out of this confidence arise two estates in the property which is the subject of it; a legal estate in the trustee, which consists essentially in obligation; and an equitable estate in the cestui que trust, which consists in right and beneficial enjoyment.

By the provisions of the statutes of the state of New York, which have been in substance adopted in some other states, all trusts in real property, except trusts resulting from implication of law, and except also certain enumerated express trusts, are abolished; and every person entitled to the possession of land, and to the receipt of its rents and profits, is declared to have a legal estate therein commensurate with his beneficial interest. Express trusts are therein defined, and the purposes for which they may be created, enumerated; and minute provisions are inserted to guard them and prevent their being abused to the injury of creditors and bona fide purchasers. Trusts which are not authorized as trusts by these provisions, operate, if at all, as powers in trust. The objects for which express trusts in lands may be created are thus defined by the statute: 1. To sell lands for the benefit of creditors. 2. To sell, mortgage, or lease lands for the benefit of legatees, or for the purpose of satisfying any charge thereon. 3. To receive the rents and profits of lands, and apply them to the use of any person, during the life of such person, or for any shorter term, subject to the provisions of law relating thereto. 4. To receive the rents and profits of real property, and to accumulate the same, for purposes and within the limits prescribed by law.¹

A trust to receive the rents, profits, and income of property, and to pay them to the cestui que trust, is valid as a trust to apply them to his use, within the statute.

Express trusts of personal estate may be created for any purpose which is not illegal, for the statutes have not defined the purposes for which they may be created.

By the Statute of Frauds, as generally enacted in this country, assignments of property in trust must be in writing, subscribed by the party or his agent.

In other cases than assignments or conveyances in trust, it is not essential to the creation of a trust, even in lands, that a deed or written instrument be executed.

A person in the legal possession of money or property, acknowledging a trust, becomes from that time a trustee, if the acknowledgment is founded on a valuable or meritorious consideration. But to render the obligation of a trust in real property enforceable, it must be manifested or declared by some writing signed by the trustee. And although it is not essential that the writing by which the trust is manifested and proven should be in any particular form, the nature of the trust, and terms and conditions of it, must sufficiently appear, so that the court may not be called upon to execute the trust in a manner different from that intended.

Trusts are usually created by ASSIGNMENTS FOR CREDITORS; DEEDS OR WILLS, and for the forms appropriate to this purpose, the reader is referred to those chapters.

CHAPTER LXVI.
WARRANTS.

A WARRANT is a written authority from a court or magistrate authorizing and directing the officer to whom it is addressed to do some act. At common law, a seal is deemed essential to a valid warrant; but the statutes often authorize warrants in particular cases without seal. A warrant should be addressed to some officer, but it may designate him by name, or may be directed to any of several officers of a class.

Various forms of warrants adapted to particular proceedings will be found in their places in other chapters.

Payments of money by cities and other municipal and public corporations are usually made by warrants. These are in the nature of ordinary bank checks, but contain, in addition to the usual form of checks, references to the particular funds against which and the law under which the warrants are drawn and the countersignatures of the proper auditing officials. A form used by the city of New York is given below.

CHAPTER LXVII.
WILLS.

THE POWER to make wills and mode of executing them vary somewhat in the different states.

At common law, all persons except infants, married women, and persons of insufficient mind, may make wills of real or personal property; and infants of the age of fourteen, if males, and twelve, if females, may make wills of personal property. But this rule has been generally modified by statute.

In New York, the statutes are to the effect that all persons except idiots, persons of unsound mind, and infants, may devise their real estate; and that males of the age of eighteen, and females of the age of sixteen, of sound mind and memory, may bequeath their personal estate, thus increasing the restriction which the common law laid upon infants, but removing the disability of married women.

Unsoundness of mind does not absolutely disqualify a person. If there is a sufficient degree of mental capacity to exercise the power of legal choice, or if there are lucid intervals, in one of which the will is made, or if the insanity relates only to special subjects not within the scope of the testamentary act, the will may be sustained, if intelligent action in making it is shown.

A gift of real property is termed a devise: a gift of personal property, a bequest or legacy.

All persons may take personal property by bequest, and all persons capable in law of holding real property may take real property by devise.

Corporations, however, cannot take real property by devise, unless they are specially authorized to do so by their charters or other laws. And by statute in New York, it is provided that, no person having a husband, wife, child, or parent, shall devise or bequeath to any benevolent, charitable, literary, scientific, religious, or missionary society, association, or corporation, in trust or otherwise, more than one-half part of his or her estate, after the payment of debts; and such devise or bequest shall be valid to the extent of one-half and no more.

Form.—No particular words are necessary to constitute a will. With an exception in favor of soldiers and sailors, who from necessity the law allows to make wills verbally—called nuncupative wills—there must be a written statement of the testator's wish, signed by him. Any statement, however, which makes the testamentary character apparent, is sufficient to give the instrument the character of a will.

In no case does a will have any operation until the testator's death. And it may be made upon condition, so that even then it will not take effect except under the circumstances specified. Two persons may make a conjoint or mutual will.

It is very common to commence wills with a formal preamble, reciting the testator's capacity to make a will, and the feelings which move him to the act. These phrases are not, however, of any legal efficacy, and may be inserted or not at pleasure.

Execution.—As to the manner of the execution of wills, the law is precise and stringent. The statutes enacted in the United States generally require that wills must be signed in the presence of two witnesses, and in many of the states three witnesses are required. But in a few states an exception to this rule is made where the will is wholly in the handwriting of the testator, especially if it be found among his papers, or disposes only of personal property. A seal is usual, but is not always required by the statutes, and when not so required is not necessary to the validity of the will, except the will contain an appointment in execution of a power requiring a seal. A mark may be a sufficient signature for the testator or for a witness; but it is preferable to have a witness who can write his name.

In general, a beneficial devise or bequest to a subscribing witness is void, unless there are the requisite number of other competent subscribing witnesses, so that the will is proved without resort to the testimony of the interested witness.

It is usual and proper, but not essential, to write at the end of the will, below or at one side of the testator's signature, a statement of the place, time, purpose, and circumstances of the signatures and execution, and to let the witnesses sign below. This statement is called the attestation clause. The advantage of such a statement is in facilitating the probate of the will. If a witness has no recollection of his attesting the will, but recognizes his name under such a statement as written by himself, and testifies that he would not have written it there had he not known the statement to be true, the courts will generally receive this as supplying his defect of memory.

The attestation must, except in a few states, be in the presence of the testator, but need not necessarily be in the same room, if he is so placed as to see the act. Against the name of every witness his residence or address should be written. In some of the states this is required by law, and in all cases it is convenient; but the absence of this, even where it is required, does not invalidate the will.

The rules prescribed by statute in the various states, for the attestation of wills, are stated in alphabetical order at the end of the chapter.

After the expiration of six months from the time of making an unwritten will, no testimony must be received to prove the same, unless the words, or the substance thereof, was reduced to writing within six days after making of the same. Ibid., § 6180.

ALASKA.

ARIZONA.

A will, except where otherwise provided by law, shall be in writing and signed by the testator or by some other person, by his direction and in his presence, and shall, if not wholly written by himself, be attested by two or more credible witnesses, above the age of fourteen years subscribing their names thereto in the presence of the testator. The witness shall sign their names as witnesses, at the end of the will, at the request of the testator.

If the will, both in body and signature, be wholly in the handwriting of the testator or testatrix, and so proved to be by at least three disinterested witnesses, to the handwriting and signature, there need be no attesting witnesses. But a witnessed will has preference over a will not witnessed, when they come in collision. Digest of the Statutes of 1904, § 8012.

Civil Code of 1909, § 1276.

An olographic will is one that is entirely written, dated, and signed by the hand of the testator himself. It is subject to no other form, and may be made in or out of this state, and need not be witnessed. Ibid., § 1277.

Where any last will, testament or codicil of or concerning real estate in this state has been or shall be admitted to probate before any court or tribunal of any state or territory of the United States, or of any country beyond the limits of the United States, such court or tribunal being authorized by the laws of such state, territory or country to admit the same to probate, the record of such court or tribunal in the matter, accompanied with a certificate of the proper officer or officers, that said will, testament or codicil, or copy thereof, was proved agreeably to the laws and usages of the state, territory or country in which the same was admitted to probate, shall entitle such will, testament or codicil to probate and record without further proof of the execution thereof, and without notice to the heirs, widow or husband of the testator or testatrix; and letters testamentary or of administration may issue thereon as in other cases. Ibid., § 7094.

Authenticated copies of wills executed and proved according to the laws of any state or territory of the United States, relating to any property in this state, may be admitted to record in the probate court of any county in this state where any part of such property may be situated; and such authenticated copies so recorded shall have the same validity as wills made in this state in conformity with the laws thereof. When any such will or authenticated copy has been or shall hereafter be admitted to record in the probate court of any county in this state where any part of such property may be situated, a copy of such recorded will, with a copy of the order to record the same annexed thereto, certified by the probate judge under the seal of his court, may be filed and recorded in the office of the probate court of any other county in this state where any part of such property is situated; and it shall be as effectual in all cases as the authenticated copy of said will would be if proved and admitted to record by the court. Ibid., § 9800.

LOUISIANA.

Wills are divided into (1) nuncupative or open, (2) mystic or sealed, (3) olographic. Revised Civil Code of 1898, art. 1574.

Wills, whether nuncupative or mystic, must be drawn up in writing, either by the testator or by some other person by his direction. Ibid., art. 1575.

Nuncupative wills may be made by public act, or by act under private signature. Ibid., art., 1577.

The nuncupative will by public act must be received by a notary public, in presence of three witnesses residing in the place where the will is executed, or of five not residing there. It must be dictated by the testator, and written by the notary as it is dictated. It must then be read to the testator in the presence of the witnesses. All those formalities must be fulfilled at one time, without interruption, and without turning aside to other acts. Ibid., art. 1578.

This will must be signed by the testator; if he declares he knows not how, or is not able to sign, express mention of his declaration, as also of the cause that hinders him from signing, must be made in the act. Ibid., art 1579.

This will must be signed by the witnesses, or at least by one for all, if the others cannot write. Ibid., art. 1580.

A nuncupative will under private signature must be written by the testator or by any other person, from his dictation; or even by one of the witnesses, in presence of five witnesses residing in the place where the will is received, or of seven residing out of it. Or it will suffice if, in the presence of the same number of witnesses, the testator present the paper, on which he has written his testament, or caused it to be written out of their presence, declaring to them that that paper contains his last will. Ibid., art. 1581.

In either case the will must be read by the testator to the witnesses, or by one of the witnesses to the rest, in presence of the testator; it must be signed by the testator, if he know how or is able to sign, and by the witnesses, or at least by two of them, in case the others know not how to sign, and those of the witnesses who do not know how to sign must affix their mark. This will is subject to no other formality than those prescribed by this and the preceding article. Ibid., art. 1582.

In the country it suffices for the validity of nuncupative wills under private signature, if the will be passed in the presence of three witnesses residing in the place where the will is received, or of five residing out of it, if more cannot be had. Ibid., art. 1583.

The mystic or secret testament, otherwise called the closed testament, is made in the following manner: The testator must sign his dispositions, whether he has written them himself or has caused them to be written by another person. The paper containing those dispositions, or the paper serving as their envelope, must be closed and sealed. The testator shall present it thus closed and sealed to the notary and three witnesses, or he shall cause it to be closed and sealed in their presence. Then he shall declare to the notary, in presence of the witnesses, that the paper contains his testament written by himself, or by another by his direction, and signed by him, the testator. The notary shall then draw up the act of superscription, which shall be written on that paper or on the sheet that serves as its envelope, and that act shall be signed by the testator and by the notary and the witnesses. Ibid., art. 1584.

All that is above prescribed shall be done without interruption or turning aside to other acts; and in case the testator, by reason of any hindrance that has happened since the signing of the will, cannot sign the act of superscription, mention shall be made of the declaration made by him thereof, without its being necessary, in that case, to increase the number of witnesses. Ibid., art. 1585.

If any of the witnesses to the act of superscription know not how to sign, express mention shall be made thereof. In all cases, the act must be signed at least by two witnesses. Ibid., art. 1587.

The olographic testament is that which is written by the testator himself. In order to be valid, it must be entirely written, dated and signed by the hand of the testator. It is subject to no other form, and may be made anywhere, even out of the state. Ibid., art. 1588.

Erasures not approved by the testator are considered as not made; and words added by the hand of another, as not written. Ibid., art. 1589.

Wills cannot be witnessed by women of any age, male children under sixteen years of age, persons insane, deaf, dumb or blind, nor persons declared by the criminal laws incapable of exercising civil functions. Ibid., art. 1591.

Wills cannot be witnessed by those who are constituted heirs or named legatees; but mystic wills are excepted. Ibid., arts. 1592, 1593.

By the residence of the witnesses in the place where the will is executed is understood their residence in the parish where that will is made; that residence is necessary only when it is expressly required by law. Ibid., art. 1594.

Wills made in foreign countries, or the states and other territories of the Union, shall take effect in this state, if they be clothed with all of the formalities prescribed for the validity of wills in the place where they have been respectively made. Ibid., art. 1596.

The wills of persons employed in armies in the field or in a military expedition may be received by a commissioned officer, in presence of two witnesses. Ibid., art. 1597.

If the testator is sick or wounded, they may be received by the physician or surgeon attending him, assisted by two witnesses. Ibid., art. 1598.

These wills are subject to no other formalities than that of being reduced to writing and being signed by the testator, if he can write, by the persons receiving them, and by the witnesses. Ibid., art. 1599.

The will, made in the form above prescribed, shall be null, six months after the return of the testator to a place where he has an opportunity to employ the ordinary forms. Ibid., art. 1600.

Wills, made during a voyage at sea, may be received by the captain or master, in presence of three witnesses taken by preference from among the passengers; in default of passengers from among the crew. Ibid., art. 1601.

The will made at sea can contain no disposition in favor of any of the persons employed on board the vessel, unless they be relations of the testator. Ibid., art. 1602.

This will, like the preceding one, is subject to no other formality than that of being reduced to writing, and being signed by the testator, if he can write, by him who receives it, and by those in whose presence it is received. Ibid., art. 1603.

The will made at sea shall not be valid unless the testator die at sea, or within three months after he has landed in a place where he is able to make it in the ordinary forms. Ibid., art. 1604.

MAINE.

A will of real or personal estate may be made in writing signed by the testator or by some person for him, at his request, and in his presence, and subscribed in his presence by three credible attesting witnesses, not beneficially interested under said will. Revised Statutes of 1903, ch. 76, § 1.

A nuncupative will must be made during the last sickness of the testator, at his home, or at the place where he resided ten days before making it, unless he is suddenly taken sick from home, and dies before returning to it. No testimony can be received to prove any testamentary words as a nuncupative will, after the lapse of six months from the time when they were spoken, unless the words or the substance of them were reduced to writing within six days after they were spoken. Ibid., § 19.

No nuncupative will is effectual to dispose of property exceeding in value one hundred dollars, unless proved by the oath of three witnesses, who were present at the making of it, and were requested by the testator to bear witness that such was his will. Ibid., § 20.

MARYLAND.

A will of real or personal property must be in writing, and signed by the testator, or by some other person for him, in his presence, and by his express direction, and attested and subscribed in the presence of the testator by two or more credible witnesses. Public General Laws of 1904, art. 93, §§ 314, 317.

No nuncupative will shall hereafter be valid in this state; but any soldier being in actual military service, or any mariner being at sea, may dispose of his movables, wages and personal estate as heretofore. Ibid., § 326.

Every will or other testamentary instrument made out of the state shall be held to be valid in Maryland, if the same be made according to the forms required by the law of the place where the same was made or by the law of the place where the testator was domiciled when the same was made, or according to the forms required by the law of this state; and if the testator was originally domiciled in Maryland, although at the time of making the will or at the time of his death he may be domiciled elsewhere, the said will or testamentary instrument then so executed shall be admitted to probate in any orphans' court of this state; and when so admitted shall be governed by and construed and interpreted according to the law of Maryland, without regard to the lex domicilii, unless the testator shall expressly declare a contrary intention in said will or testamentary instrument. Ibid., § 327.

Nothing contained herein shall affect the validity of a nuncupative will, in which the value of the estate bequeathed shall not exceed three hundred dollars, provided the same shall be proved by two competent witnesses; nor Every will duly proved and allowed outside of this state, in accordance with the laws in force in the place where proved, may be allowed, filed, and recorded in any county in which the testator left property upon which such will may operate. Ibid., § 3683.

No will shall be valid unless it be in writing and signed by the testator or by some other person in his presence and by his direction, in such manner as to make it manifest that the name is intended as a signature; and moreover, unless it be wholly by the testator, the signature shall be made or the will acknowledged by him in the presence of at least two competent witnesses, present at the same time; and such witnesses shall subscribe the will in the presence of the testator, but no form of attestation shall be necessary. Code of 1904, § 2514.

Notwithstanding the two preceding sections, a soldier being in actual military service, or a mariner, seaman being at sea, may dispose of his personal estate as he might heretofore have done; and the will of a person domiciled out of this state at the time of his death shall be valid as to personal property in this state, if it be executed according to the law of the state or country in which he was so domiciled. Ibid., § 2516.

Where a will relative to estate within this state has been proved without the same, an authenticated copy thereof, and a certificate of probate thereof, may be offered for probate in this state. When such copy is offered, the court to which it is offered shall presume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the will was duly executed and admitted to probate as a will of personalty in the state or country of the testator's domicile, and shall admit such copy to probate as a will of personalty in this state. And if it appear from such copy that the will was proved to be a valid will of lands in this state by the law thereof, such copy may be admitted to probate as a will of real estate. Ibid., § 2536.

WASHINGTON.

Every will shall be in writing signed by the testator or testatrix or be attested by two or more competent witnesses, subscribing their names to the will in the presence of the testator. Annotated Codes and Statutes, 1909, § 1320.

Every person who shall sign the testator's or testatrix's name to any will by his or her direction shall subscribe his own name as a witness to such will and state that he subscribed the testator's name at his request. Ibid., § 1321.

No will in writing, except in cases hereinafter mentioned nor any part thereof shall be revoked except by a subsequent will in writing or by removing, canceling, tearing, or obliterating by the testator or testatrix or in his presence or by his or her consent or direction. Ibid., § 1322.

No nuncupative will shall be good when the estate bequeathed exceeds the value of two hundred dollars unless the same be proved by two witnesses who were present at the making thereof, and it be proven that the testator at the time of pronouncing the same did bid some person present to bear witness that such was his will, or to that effect and such nuncupative will was made at the time of the last sickness and at the dwelling house of the deceased, or where he had been residing for the space of ten days or more, except where such person was taken sick from home and died before his return. Nothing herein contained shall prevent any mariner at sea or soldier in the military service from disposing of his wages or other personal property by nuncupative will. Ibid., § 1330.

No proof shall be received of any nuncupative will unless it be offered within six months after speaking the testamentary words or the substance thereof be first committed to writing and a citation issued to the widow or next of kin of the deceased, that they may contest the will if they think proper. Ibid., § 1331.

WEST VIRGINIA.

No will shall be valid unless it be in writing and signed by the testator or by some other person in his presence and by his direction in such manner as to make it manifest that the name is intended as a signature; and moreover, unless it be wholly written by the testator, the signature shall be made or the will acknowledged by him in the presence of at least two competent witnesses, present at the same time; and such witnesses shall subscribe the will in the presence of the testator, and of each other, but no form of attestation shall be necessary. Code of 1906, § 3135.

Notwithstanding the two preceding sections, a soldier being in actual military service or a mariner or seaman being at sea, may dispose of his personal estate as he might heretofore have done; and the will of a person domiciled out of this state at the time of his death shall be valid as to all personal property in this state, if it be executed according to the law of the state or country in which he was so domiciled. Ibid., § 3137.

Where a will relative to estate within this state has been proved without the same, an authenticated copy and the certificate of probate thereof, may be offered for probate in this state. When such copy is so offered the court to which, or the clerk to whom, it is offered, shall presume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the will was duly executed and admitted to probate as a will of personalty in the state or country of the testator's domicile, and shall admit such copy to probate as a will of personalty in this state; and if it appear from such copy that the will was proved in the foreign court of probate to have been so executed as to be a valid will of land in this state by the law thereof, such copy may be admitted to probate as a will of real estate. But any person interested, may, within five years from the time such authenticated copy is admitted to record, upon reasonable notice to the parties interested, have the order admitting the same set aside, upon due and satisfactory proof that such authenticated copy was not a true copy of such will, or that the probate of such will has been set aside by the court by which it was admitted to probate, or that such probate was improperly made. Ibid., § 3157.

WISCONSIN.

No will made within this state since the first day of January, 1896, except such nuncupative wills as are mentioned in this chapter, shall be effectual to pass any estate, whether real or personal, or to charge or in any way affect the same unless it be in writing and signed by the testator or by some person in his presence and by his express direction, and attested and subscribed in the presence of the testator by two or more competent witnesses in the presence of each other; if the witnesses are competent at the time of such attesting their subsequent incompetency, from whatever cause it may arise, shall not prevent the probate and allowance of the will if it be otherwise satisfactorily proved. Statutes of 1898, § 2282.

A last will and testament executed without this state in the mode prescribed by the law either of the place where executed or of the testator's domicile shall be deemed to be legally executed and shall be of the same force and effect as if executed in the mode prescribed by the laws of this state; provided, said last will and testament is in writing and subscribed by the testator; and provided further, that this section shall not affect such nuncupative wills as are mentioned in this chapter. Ibid., § 2283.

No nuncupative will shall be good when the estate bequeathed shall exceed the value of one hundred and fifty dollars that is not proved by the oath of three witnesses, at least, that were present at the making thereof; nor unless it be proved that the testator, at the time of pronouncing the same, did bid the persons present, or some of them, to bear witness that such was his will or to that effect; nor unless such nuncupative will were made at the time of the last sickness of the deceased and in the house of his or her habitation or dwelling, or where he or she had been resident for the space of ten days or more next before the making of such will, except where such person was unexpectedly taken sick, being from home, and died before he or she returned to the place of his or her habitation. Ibid., § 2292.

After six months shall have passed after speaking any pretended testamentary words no testimony shall be received to prove the same as a nuncupative will unless the said words or the substance thereof were reduced to writing within six days after the same testamentary words were spoken. Nor shall letters testamentary or probate of any nuncupative will be issued by any county court until fourteen days, at least, after the decease of the testator be fully expired; nor shall any nuncupative will be at any time approved and allowed unless notice shall have first been given to the widow and other persons principally interested, if resident within the state, to the end that they may contest the same if they please. Nothing herein contained shall prevent any soldier being in actual service nor any mariner being on shipboard from disposing of his wages and other personal estate by a nuncupative will. Ibid., § 2293.

When a will devised lands in this state, or any interest therein, shall have been duly proved and allowed in the proper court of any other of the United States or the territories thereof a copy of such will and of the probate thereof, duly authenticated, may be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of any county in which any such lands are situated, and when so recorded, and all such as may have heretofore been so recorded, shall be as valid and effectual to pass the title to such lands as if such will had been duly proved and allowed by the proper court in this state; and the record of such copy or a duly certified transcript thereof shall be presumptive evidence of the authority of any person authorized by such will to convey or otherwise dispose of any such lands. Ibid., § 2295.

WYOMING.

All wills to be valid must be in writing, or type-written, witnessed by two competent witnesses, and signed by the testator or by some person in his presence and by his express direction, and if the witnesses are competent at the time of attesting the execution of the will, their subsequent incompetency, from whatever cause it may arise, shall not prevent the probate and allowance of the will. No subscribing witness to any will can derive any benefit therefrom unless there be two disinterested and competent witnesses to the same, but if without a will such witness would be entitled to any portion of the testator's estate, such witness may still receive such portion to the extent and value of the amount devised, and any type-written wills which may have been executed prior to February sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five, shall be admitted to probate notwithstanding the fact that they are type-written, if in all other respects they are legally executed. Revised Statutes, 1899, § 4568.

All wills duly proved and allowed in any other of the United States, or in any foreign country or state, may be allowed and recorded in the district court of any county in which the testator shall have left any estate. Ibid., § 4582.

When a copy of the will and the probate thereof, duly authenticated, shall be produced by the executor, or by any other person interested in the will, with a petition for letters, the same must be filed, and the court, judge or commissioner thereof must appoint a time for the hearing; notice whereof must be given as hereinbefore provided for an original petition for the probate of a will. Ibid., § 4583.

If, on the hearing, it appears upon the face of the record that the will has been proved, allowed, and admitted to probate in any other of the United States, or in any foreign country, and that it was executed according to the law of the place in which the same was made, or in which the testator was at the time domiciled, or in conformity with the laws of this state, it must be admitted to probate, and have the same force and effect as a will first admitted to probate in this state, and letters testamentary or of administration issued thereon. Ibid., § 4584.

When a will of personal property made by a person who resided without this state at the time of the execution thereof or at the time of his death, has been admitted to probate within the foreign country or within the state or territory of the United States where it was executed or where the testator resided at the time of his death, the district court having jurisdiction of the estate in this state, or the judge thereof in vacation, must upon an application made as prescribed in this chapter, accompanied by a copy of the will and of the foreign letters, if any have been issued, authenticated as prescribed by the act of congress of the United States relating to the authentication of the legislative acts and judicial proceedings of the states and territories of the United States, record the will and foreign letters and issue thereupon ancillary letters testamentary or ancillary letters of administration with the will annexed, as the case may require. Ibid., § 4585.

Nuncupative wills may, at any time within six months after the testamentary words are spoken by the decedent, be admitted to probate, on petition and notice, as provided herein for the probate of other wills. The petition, in addition to the jurisdictional facts, must allege that the testamentary words, or the substance thereof, were reduced to writing within thirty days after they were spoken, which writing must accompany the petition. Ibid., § 4598.

The court or judge thereof in vacation must not receive or entertain a petition for the probate of a nuncupative will, until the lapse of ten days from the death of the testator, nor must such petition at any time be acted on until the testamentary words, or their substance is reduced to writing and filed with the petition, nor until the surviving husband or wife (if any) and all other persons resident in the state or county interested in the estate are notified as hereinbefore provided. Ibid., § 4599.

Contests of the probate of nuncupative wills and appointments of executors and administrators of the estate devised thereby must be had, conducted and made as hereinbefore provided in cases of the probate of written wills. Ibid., § 4600.

CHAPTER LXVIII.

WRECKS.

THE term "wreck" applies to property cast upon the land by the sea, but the term cannot be extended to a boat or other property afloat, not appearing to have been cast overboard or lost from a vessel in distress.

In England the right to wrecked property vests in the crown. In the United States, the states have different provisions respecting the protection and disposition of a wreck, whose general features provide for the appointment of officers, whose duty it should be to save and secure the property, appraise the same and keep it in a safe place to await the claim of persons who may thereafter appear to be entitled thereto. There are also statutory provisions as to the advertisement and sale of said wrecked property. In the state of New York, the subject is regulated by the Navigation Law, §§ 80-93, Birdseye, C. & G. Cons. Laws, pp. 3625-3629, and the forms given below will be found useful in other states.
